Quake deaths estimated at 6,000

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — The U.N. Disaster Relief Organization — UNDRO — estimated today that nearly 6,000 persons died and 40,000 were injured in Wednesday's earthquake in Guatemala as the United States began a 17-plane airlift of aid to the devastated country.

A U.N. spokesman in Geneva said the estimate, much higher than that by officials in Guatemala City, came from UNDRO representatives in Guatemala who reported about 800 dead in Guatemala City and about 5,000 in other areas of the country.

Guatemala's National Emergency Committee estimated the toll at 2,500 to 3,000 dead, 15,000 injured and 200,000 homeless.

Sources close to the committee said the casualty estimates were conservative.

The committee said it had information from 80 per cent of the area hit hardest by the quake, a region which stretched across 75 per cent of the nation of 6 million people.

An American survey team from the Panama Canal Zone flew over the country in helicopters Thursday, locating the worst damage in a region north and northwest of Guatemala City.

The U.S. Embassy said the survey confirmed the total destruction of several cities, including Joyabaj, population 32,000; Tecpan, 24,000; and Patzicia, 11,000. The town of Chimaltenango, 20,000 population, was 98 per cent leveled.

The emergency committee said other towns leveled by the quake were Comalapa, 18,000; El Progreso, 12,000, and Zaragosa, 8,000, and that many smaller towns and villages suffered the same fate.

"Up to Wednesday, it did not look so bad because all we could see was Guatemala City. Today, it's an entirely different situation," an embassy spokesman said.

No deaths or injuries were reported among the estimated 5,000 Americans living in Guatemala or visiting there as tourists. But hundreds of Guatemalans were believed dead here in the capital, where slum districts in the center of the city were hit hardest. Adobe huts and shops were flattened, but most major buildings were left standing.

A massive relief effort was under way from the United States as well as from neighboring countries, which suffered varying degrees of damage but had no reported deaths and few injuries.

The U.S. Embassy said 16 big C141 transport planes from American bases began landing at the rate of one an hour at Guatemala City's international airport Thursday night.

U.S. aid included a 100-bed hospital manned by 25 doctors that was airlifted from Ft. Sill, Okla., and 500 family tents, 500 pints of blood plasma, 5,000 doses of antibiotics, a dozen 3,000-gallon water storage tanks, electric power generators, pumps and other supplies.

Liquor store robbed

Baugher's Cut Rate Liquor Store, 2003 E. Malone Ave., was robbed of $200 shortly after 7 p.m. by an armed man wearing a ski mask.

Store clerk Alton Stewart told police the man entered the store about 7:05 p.m., displayed a pistol and ordered him to open the cash register.

Once the man had the money from the cash register, he told Stewart to take the money from the store safe and give it to him.

After getting the money, he told Stewart to stay in the back room for five minutes or he would shoot.

Stewart told officers he called them from a phone in the back room as soon as he heard the man leave the building.

Stewart described the man as about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds.

Jobless rate drop largest in 16 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped from 8.3 per cent to 7.8 per cent in January, the largest monthly decline in the jobless rate in more than 16 years, the government said today.

The Labor Department said total employment in January increased by 800,000, the largest monthly job increase since early 1960. Total employment in the economy in January was 86.2 million, which was close to the prerecession peak employment in July of 1974.

The Labor Department figures are sure to win the Ford administration support for its economic policies in 1976.

The gains in employment were widespread throughout the economy, with only the teen-age jobless rate failing to improve.

The Labor Department gave the following unemployment breakdown:

—Adult men, 5.8 per cent, down from 6.6 per cent in December.

—Adult women, 7.5 per cent, down from 8 per cent.

—Whites, 7.1 per cent, down from 7.6 per cent.

—Blacks and other races, 13.2 per cent, down from 13.8 per cent.

—Heads of households, 5.1 per cent, down from 5.7 per cent.

—Married men, 4.1 per cent, down from 4.8 per cent.

—Full-time workers, 7.3 per cent, down from 7.9 per cent.

—White collar workers, 4.7 per cent, down from 4.8 per cent.

—Blue collar workers, 9.4 per cent, down from 10.7 per cent.

—Teen-agers, 19.9 per cent, up from 19.6 per cent in December.

The Labor Department said total employment in January was 2.1 million above the recession low of last March, when the unemployment rate was 8.5 per cent. The peak unemployment rate during the recession was 8.9 per cent n May, when the labor force had shrunk to a low level.

Among signs of an improving employment outlook have been a big decline in new unemployment insurance claims in January, an increase in the average work week to 40.3 hours and an increase in work overtime.

Any decline in unemployment would be eagerly welcomed by the Ford administration, since its program for reducing unemployment in 1976 is being criticized as inadequate.

And 1976 is a presidential election year.

Charges expected today against 2 in shooting

EAST PRAIRIE— Charges of assault with intent to kill are expected to be filed today against an East Prairie couple, Stanley and Linda Davidson, ages unavailable, in connection with a shooting assault about midnight Thursday.

Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom said today that Margie Linley, 21, and Raymond Thomas Linley, 23, of East Prairie, her brother-in-law, were allegedly shot by the Davidsons shortly after midnight on a country road half a mile north of the Whiting community near East Prairie.

The Linleys were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston, where Mrs. Linley this morning was reported in serious, but stable, condition in the intensive care unit and Linely was listed in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Linley was shot once with a .22-caliber rifle in the left breast, with the bullet exiting through her back. Grissom said Mrs. Davidson is believed to have shot the Linley woman while she was standing outside her brother-in-law's truck on the country road.

Linley was shot in the left hip by a shotgun believed to have been fired by Davidson. The shot was fired through the door of Linley's pickup truck.

Grissom said reports indicate that the Davidsons, Margie Linley and her husband, Harry Linley, had been involved in an altercation earlier at a tavern in East Prairie. The Linleys reportedly went to Raymond Linley's home and asked him to take them to get their car.

En route to get the car, the Linleys apprently turned down the country road, where they stopped and were talking with Larry Boyer of East Prairie when the Davidsons drove up. Boyer witnessed the shooting incident.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivie arrested the Davidsons following the shooting and took them to the Mississippi County jail at Charleston, where they remained in custody this morning.

Portageville to conduct community self-survey

PORTAGEVILLE — A community self- survey questionnaire is nearing completion, and copies are expected to be delivered to every household in the city, as well as nearby rural areas within a few weeks.

Many persons have been working to arouse citizens' interest and participation in the survey since the initial planning session last October.

The purpose of a self-survey is to identify the things people like, as well as those things they think would help make Portageville even better.

The survey is a step toward getting a Community Betterment Program actively functioning.

The questionnaire is being compiled from questions, suggestions and comments that have been received from those who responded to a call for input to the survey.

Citizens are asked to begin considering what each would like to see accomplished in the five categories covered by the survey. The questionnaire is divided into the following segments: general, business and industry, recreation, beautification and city services.

The Community Betterment Steering Committee is asking citizens to take advantage of the opportunity to share their ideas for the future welfare of the community.

Results of the survey will be useful to civic clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, community betterment committee, official bodies and even individuals in setting priorities for projects and goals to improve the community.

House bill sent to Senate without needed votes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill that failed to get the needed 82 votes to pass the Missouri House has still been declared approved and sent to the Senate.

The measure, creating a special 12-member commission to study the states tax structure, is a priority proposal of House Speaker Richard Rabbitt and other Democratic House leaders as well as Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Immediately after the Thursday balloting on the measure, Rabbitt announced from the speaker's rostrum that the bill had received the 82 votes required by the state Constitution for final approval.

But the tablulation of the electronic voting board, including three voting changes made after the board was closed, showed that only 81 representatives favored passage. Twenty-one members were absent.

Although the official vote count showed the bill had failed, Rabbitt said no action would be taken to return the bill to the House until Monday. At that time, House members will be asked to review the recorded votes to see if their votes were recorded properly.

If votes were recorded incorrectly and correction of these errors makes the tally for the bill 82 or more, the bill will remain approved, Rabbitt said. If not, it will be considered defeated. A parliamentary maneuver would then be necessary to revive it.

But Republican Floor Leader Robert Snyder, who opposed the bill, said it should be declared defeated immediately and brought back to the House from the Senate.

"It's a corruption of the legislative process and a violation of the Constitution," Snyder said of the failure to declare the bill killed.

"If the Constitution requires 82 votes to pass a bill, you can't pass one with only 81," he said.

Opponents of the measure claimed it involved creation of an unnecessary commission to do the work that lawmakers and state officials should be doing now. But backers contended legislators do not have the time to devote to a detailed study and the commission could provide them with the needed information.

Rabbitt said discrepencies in vote totals like the one Thursday result from members voting at the speaker's rostrum rather than from their desks as they are supposed to do.

Efforts by some House members, including Speaker Pro Tem Richard DeCoster of Canton, to end that practice, however, have met with no success.

A second bill, requiring all tax-supported institutions to buy only American produced beef, gained final approval only after 11 members were allowed to either vote or change their votes at the rostrum after the electronic voting board was closed.

Votes on the board showed the bill with only 79 favorable votes, three short of the number needed. Five minutes later, after the changes and new votes were allowed, the bill was declared passed. The actual voting tabulation showed 85 votes in favor although Rabbitt announced the total as 86.

"It's a corruption of the legislative process and a violation of the Constitution," Snyder said of the failure to declare the bill killed.

"If the Constitution requires 82 votes to pass a bill, you can't pass one with only 81," he said.

Opponents of the measure claimed it involved creation of an unnecessary commission to do the work that lawmakers and state officials should be doing now. But backers contended legislators do not have the time to devote to a detailed study and the commission could provide them with the needed information.

Rabbitt said discrepencies in vote totals like the one Thursday result from members voting at the speaker's rostrum rather than from their desks as they are supposed to do.

Efforts by some House members, including Speaker Pro Tem Richard DeCoster of Canton, to end that practice, however, have met with no success.

A second bill, requiring all tax-supported institutions to buy only American produced beef, gained final approval only after 11 members were allowed to either vote or change their votes at the rostrum after the electronic voting board was closed.

Votes on the board showed the bill with only 79 favorable votes, three short of the number needed. Five minutes later, after the changes and new votes were allowed, the bill was declared passed. The actual voting tabulation showed 85 votes in favor although Rabbitt announced the total as 86.

TALK IS CHEAP

Traditionally, reports to stockholders of major companies have dealt primarily with such things as expansion plans, profits and improved operations. The main purpose of the reports has been to show that the investor has put his money in a good company and can look forward to a reasonable return. However, today many such reports, particularly in the area of energy, contain sections on expenditures that contribute not one dime to profits or productivity. Nonetheless, they have become an unavoidable cost of doing business both to companies and to consumers.

A quarterly report to stockholders from one typical electric company describes air quality control equipment -- precipitators -- it is installing at its coal- fired steam electric generating plants in the states of Washington and Wyoming. The Wyoming plant precipitators are among the largest ever built. There are three of them -- each 210 feet in length, and 180-feet wide and has high as a nine-story building. Each will cost $17 million -- and all of this in a sparsely- populated mountain state, where it is difficult to conceive of air pollution as a serious problem. At another Wyoming site, the same company is rebuilding three older air quality control units at a cost of $35 million.

These figures deal with merely one utility company. They are a small segment of the overall pollution control effort which is destined to cost untold billions of dollars over the next few years and will forevermore remain a part of the cost of living. Every mistake in regulation and every excessively stringent pollution control law will boost the cost just that much higher -- needlessly. There is a vast spread between words and deeds in pollution control and that spread is measured in dollars, as everyone is beginning to discover.

DON'T IGNORE GRAIN AS BARGAINING TOOL

President Ford was both right and wrong in his statements regarding Angola, made before the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in St. Louis the other day.

In answer to those who have been urging that the United States cut off its grain shipments to the Soviet Union if the Kremlin does not cease its meddling in that African country, the President pointed out that the linking of grain with diplomacy would cause "disruption and hardship" for the American farmer, lead to a serious increase of tensions between the world's two superpowers and have no effect in Angola.

It would be naive, of course, to believe otherwise. The Russians have their pride, just like anyone else. Any blatant threat of punitive actions if they don't behave as we want them to behave would likely only harden their posture, at least in the short run.

There is little evidence that the attempt last year by Congress to force the Soviets to ease their emigration restrictions against Russian Jews by withholding most- favored-nation trade status had any beneficial result. It may, in fact, have worsened the situation of the Jews.

Mr. Ford would seem to be on shakier ground, however, when he dismisses entirely the idea of using grain as a diplomatic lever. The Russians, he says, could get along without American wheat.

Maybe they could — but again only in the short run and not as easily as the United States could get along without the rubles the Russians are paying for our wheat. Any hardship a cut-off of these sales might mean to the American farmer pales in comparison to the fact that an estimated one of every five Russians is eating bread whose ingredients originated in, say, Kansas or the Dakotas.

And as for "disruption," it is difficult to foresee anything worse than the economic disruption occasioned by the infamous wheat deal of 1972, which had unhappy inflationary consequences for every American.

If the Russians can get along without American grain, well and good. No one wants to see them starve. Rather than investing millions in an uncertain struggle- by- proxy in Angola, we could spend the money to stopkpile this grain the Russians don't need.

The world's grain reserves are down to a mere 30 days' supply, a perilously low level. Everything the American farmer can produce is going to be desperately needed by the earth's burgeoning population in the coming decades — and that includes the Russians if they have many more bad harvests or are unable to achieve a dramatic improvement in their agricultural productivity.

To restate it then, the President is right when he argues that any attempt to coerce the Kremlin before the eyes of the world would be counterproductive. Far better if quiet diplomacy — the "limited measures" he mentioned but did not specify — can bring about a solution in Angola.

But if at the same time the United States does not also make it quietly plain to the Kremlin that, if push comes to shove, we are perfectly willing to keep our grain for ourselves or sell it elsewhere, then we will be throwing away a bargaining tool of immense value.

During a hike in the woods a troop of boy scouts came across an abandoned section of railroad track. Each, in turn, tried walking the rails but eventually lost his balance and tumbled off.

Suddenly two of the boys, after considerable whispering, offered to bet that they could both walk the entire length of the track without falling off. Challenged to make good their boast, the two boys jumped up on opposite rails, extended a hand to balance each other, and walked the entire section of track with no difficulty whatever.

There, in a nutshell, is the principle of modern business and community living. The day of the hermit and the lone wolf are gone forever. We do things better, we produce more, and we live better by helping each other. The fellow who lends a helping hand benefits himself at the same time as he helps the other fellow.

The reverse is also true. When we don't help each other, when we don't cooperate, the whole system starts to rattle and shake.

The difference between a good company and a poor one, an effective department and an inefficient one, is often reflected in the cooperation, or lack of it, among the people who work there. When people help each other, freely and voluntarily, there's a spirit of teamwork that makes a department or company really go — a pleasure to be associated with. When there's no cooperation — no spirit of the helping hand freely given— whatmight have been pleasant jobs become grudging chores.

Do you recall when Edmund Hillary and his native guide, Tenzing, made their historic climb of Mt. Everest? Coming down from the peak Hillary suddenly lost his footing. Tenzing held the line taut and kept them both from falling by digging his ax into the ice. Later Tenzing refused any special credit for saving Hillary's life; he considered it a routine part of the job. As he put it: "Mountain climbers always help each other."

Should the rest of us be any different?

'URBAN NIGHTMARE' IS WORLDWIDE

The name Curtiba will mean nothing to most Americans. Neither will Lyallpur. They happen to be two cities in Brazil and Pakistan which have joined the list of world cities having a million or more inhabitants.

As recently as 1950, only 75 ceities on earth were this large. Today, the list has grown to 191, with Curtiba and Lyallpur joining such better- known cities as Vancouver, Damascus and Odessa.

Only a decade from now, the rollcall will have increased to 273, with Siberia's Krasnoyarsk and Madagascar's Tananarive coming in alongside Cuglin, Aleppo and Kabul.

Not only that, but cities with 10 million or more people will likely include Mexico City, Sao Paulo, Los Angeles, Shanghai, Peking, London, Bombay, Calcutta, Osaka- Kobe, Seoul, Buenosi Aires, Paris, Rio De Janiero and Cairo in addition to New York and Tokyo.

In 1985, "more than 800 million people will be living in a sprawling urban nightmare — one in six of the human race," write London Sunday times reporters Rosemary Righter and Peter Wilsher, as quoted in the world press review magazine Atlas.

The horrendous living conditions endoured by Calcutt'as present populatoin of nine million are well known. But even in the more advanced countries, runaway urbanization is reaching the breaking point.

Tokyo, whose population increased from 3.5 million in 1945 to nearly 12 million today, now builds 120,000 dwelling units a year. Yet its housing shortage is estimated at well over half a million. Whole families are crowded into rooms of 40 square feet.

The Paris newspaper Le Monde, also quoted by Atlas, cites a report by the french Association of Big City Mayors warnings that more and more cities in france face bankruptcy.

In Nantes, Lille, Besancon, Toulon, Le Havre and versailles, the diagnosis is identical, says the newspaper. "As an ever-increasing tide of people flows from the countryside metropolises, the cities fight a losing battle trying to adapt their resources to their indispensable and irreducible expenses."

This phenomenon of urbanization would be taking place even if world population were not growing by leaps and bounds. But absolute population growth, which every nation is experiencing to greater or lesser degree, greatly hastens the arrival of "the urban nightmare."

GOOD NEWS!

Some good news has come to light. An authority on the diagnosis and solution of management problems in government and business has said that federal pay scales are lacking in incentives. There is too little spread between the lowest and the highest pay scales.

According to Business Week magazine, the problem is particularly bad in the five top levels which include all presidential appointees and members of both houses of Congress -- the top "ruling" hierarchy of the United States. Since the additional pay is relatively small, why should a minor functionary in the lowest category work his head off to achieve bureaucratic recognition as the head of a major agency? The heavy increase in worry and risk of exposure to the vagaries of political fortune would hardly be worth perhaps a mere 15 per cent increase in salary. This is good news for the taxpayer. Maybe fewer people will seek government jobs if the salary at the top of the pile is not too tempting. Uncle Samalready has a $33 billion payroll and 2.7 million civilian employees. It seems like that should be enough.

By Victor Riesel

Kennedy, Reuther and Co.:
Whjere the Assault on CIA began

WASHINGTON — Actually, the late Bobby Kennedy was the first powerful politico to attempt to thwart the CIA's inflexible anti-Soviet policy; then try to bypass it; and finally break its "cover."

Bobby's anti-CIA campaign began back in 1962 when, during long periods of the late President Kennedy's illness, Robert, through Kenny O'Donnell and Larry O'Brien, controlled the White House.

Much of this operation developed in collaboration with the Reuther brothers, Walter and Victor. The latter, last of the Reuthers, is still around and vigorous.

Long ago, he developed strong antipathy against inflexible anti-Sovietism and a deep personal hatred of labor chief George Meany, who personifies all opposition to any dealings with Moscow. At that time Victor Reuther was head of the United Auto Workers' international affairs department.

According to sources privy to the inner operations of international intelligence, Bobby Kennedy arranged a secret conference in 1962. Purpose was to skim a million dollars off some government fund. Then to dispatch it covertly to Italy. There, it was to be used to "convince" Italian labor leaders to merge their three organizations into one front.

Biggest of the three Italian national union centers was the Confederazione Generale Italiana del Lavoro (CGIL). This was, and is, Soviet-dominated. It's affiliated with the Moscow-controlled World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU), from whose Prague headquarters I was physically heaved some years ago.

The result of merging the CGIL with the other two confederations, of course, would have been to hand the smaller Christian Democrat, Social Democrat and Socialist labor syndicates over to the powerful Communist Party allies.

This would have put Italy's entire labor force under "the line." Giving this little heed, Bobby Kennedy developed his strategy for a united Italian labor front.

To his secret conference he invited Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Walter Reuther and two or three others. CIA men were not among them.

But it didn't take long for Meany to learn of the secret session on united front policy, which he has been and still is battling. Over to the White Houe he went. It was the Bronx-Irish plumber eyeballing it with the Boston Brahman. President Kennedy soon reached for the phone. Later the two Kennedy brothers talked. Bobby was told to get out of international politics.

But the assault on the CIA rolled on. Victor Reuther never let up. Neither did a little-known Senator called Eugene McCarthy or the global J. William Fulbright. For years -- especially in 1966 -- McCarthy tried to get a Senate committee to investigate the CIA. Apparently this bug floated through the Northwest. Idaho's Frank Church finally did get one to smash the cover.

But Fulbright, back in 1966, was more subtle. He wanted to take surveillance of the CIA from the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees. And he saw his big opening in 1966 when the CIA got a new Director, ex-newsman Richard McGarrah Helms. Casually Fulbright said he heard that the CIA was in domestic affairs -- perhaps interfering in union elections.

That was in July (1966). Well, he might have heard this from Victor Reuther. On May 22 that year Vic Reuther got himself interviewed by a very friendly West Coast reporter during the United Auto Workers Long Beach (Calif.) convention.

Victor charged that the CIA was operating through Meany and the AFL-CIO's international affairs department. There was no evidence that either Meany or the national labor headquarters itself were fronting for any intelligence service when the AFL people helped fight off Soviet-subsidized labor operations in post-war Europe.

There was, of course, and is, what could be called a labor desk in the CIA. Why not? Some day it will be understood that aside from jet fighters and sophisticated rockets, labor organizations have been the Soviets' most powerful weapons.

But Meany wasn't pitching for the CIA. He operated on his own -- all the way from tens of thousands of CARE packages dispatched to anti-Communist leaders weakened by years in Nazi concentration camps to actual cash gifts to free-world anti-Communist unioins.

However, the Victor Reuther charge stuck. It was the first bullseye salvo. Soon, from Finland to Chile to Japan, any anti-Communist union linked in any way to American unions or sympathetic to the U.S. was charged by the Soviet-controlled opposition with being a CIA spy front. This hurt the anti-Communists.

And it avalanched to the grim cover-cracking intelligence smashing which can be seen here on the boards daily.

As for Bill Colby, goodby Mr. Chips.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Rabin's Complaint to U.S.: CIA tried to Undermine Israel
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Despite the cordial smiles that abounded during the recent visit of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to Washington, his secret talks with U.S. leaders were marked by bitter complaints against the CIA.

The fluttering blue and white Israeli flags along downtown streets, the warm greeting by President Ford on a rainy White House lawn and Rabin's address to Congress created an impressino that U.S.-Israeli relations were trouble-free.

In private talks, however, Rabin pulled out sheafs of top secret Israeli intelligence reports in an attempt to show the CIA and its recently departed director William Colby tried to sundermine Israel.

Colby advised key senators late last year that Israel had a respectable military advantage over its Arab neighbors. Partly as a result, President Fod is asking only $1.8 billion in aid for Israel, at least $500 million less than the Israelis are seeking.

But during his visit, Rabin denounced Colby's estimates as incomplete, citing figures from his own highly respected intelligence services. For instance, he charged, Colby had de-emphasized Jordan's 600 to 700 tanks and another 1,000 tanks in Iraq.

Rabin was particularly furious over the CIA's estimates on Iraq which supplied three large units of troops to the Arabs int he 1973 war. At that time, Rabin acidly pointed out here, the Iraqis were distracted by Kurdish rebels.

Recently, however, to Israel's dismay, the CIA has withdrawn its support of the Kurds, thus freeing four more Iraqi divisions for possible action against Israel.

In addition, Rabin said the United States is unrealistic in thinking that Saudi Arabia, with its cophisticated U.S. arms, is not a potential Israeli opponent.

Meanwhile, the Soviet bloc, according to Rabin's top secret reports, is replenishing its Arab friends with planes, tanks and other war supplies at a rate five times faster than the United States is restocking Israel.

Indeed, observed Rabin during one conference, Israel has had to incorporate Russian equipment captured from the Arabvs into its own military forces. The problem is, ne noted sardonically, that Israel cannot buy Russian arms and ammunitioin.

KOREA CAPER: In a wild journalistic career missed by congressional investigators, the CIA once tried to bribe the Communist world's most famous newsman, Wilfred Burchett, into defecting to the United States for $100,000.

Defection by the talented Australian whose byline is familiar all over the Communist world would have been a juicy intelligence and publicity coup fort he United States.

The bizaarre idea of buying off Burchett originated tiwht Maj. Gen. Blackshear Bryan, a top U.S. negotiator at Panmunjom, Korea, in September 1953. He discussed it with a U.S. newsman, a U.S. intelligence officer in WorldWar II, who was an acquaintance of Burchett.

The newsman sat down with the CIA and drafted a plan in which the $100,000 would be offered to Burchett as he and the newman walked down a Panmiunjom path. At the end of the path was a U.S. landing pad where a helicopter wouldbe ready to spirit off Burchett.

The newsman, who asked that his name be withheld because he still may visit Communist countries, told us that his purpose in serving as intermediary was to force the CIA to get information for him on two captured friends. The friends, correspondents Don Dixon and Richard Applegate, had been seized in a yacht off Hong Kong by Red China.

Skeptical ofthe Burchett plan's success, the newsman nevertheless raised it with the Communist reporter before they began their walk. "My news organization can offer you $100,000 for your life story," the newsman said. "Plus we'll take very good care of you." The $100,000 was to be CIA funds.

But Burchett had a wife and newborn child in Peking and also apparently liked his life as a globe-trotting Communist star reporter. He gave the U.S. newsman no encouragement. When the newsman-intermediary advised that the scheme be dropped, the CIA cancelled "Operation Burchett."

Footnote: The newsman told us he had been promised the scoop on the defection as part of the agreement. "Besides," he said, "don't forget, in those days we all felt differently about the CIA."

DON'T IGNORE GRAIN AS BARGAINING TOOL

President Ford was both right and wrong in his statements regarding Angola, made before the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in St. Louis the other day.

In answer to those who have been urging that the United States cut off its grain shipments to the Soviet Union if the Kremlin does not cease its meddling in that African country, the President pointed out that the linking of grain with diplomacy would cause "disruption and hardship" for the American farmer, lead to a serious increase of tensions between the world's two superpowers and have no effect in Angola.

It would be naive, of course, to believe otherwise. The Russians have their pride, just like anyone else. Any blatant threat of punitive actions if they don't behave as we want them to behave would likely only harden their posture, at least in the short run.

There is little evidence that the attempt last year by Congress to force the Soviets to ease their emigration restrictions against Russian Jews by withholding most- favored-nation trade status had any beneficial result. It may, in fact, have worsened the situation of the Jews.

Mr. Ford would seem to be on shakier ground, however, when he dismisses entirely the idea of using grain as a diplomatic lever. The Russians, he says, could get along without American wheat.

Maybe they could — but again only in the short run and not as easily as the United States could get along without the rubles the Russians are paying for our wheat. Any hardship a cut-off of these sales might mean to the American farmer pales in comparison to the fact that an estimated one of every five Russians is eating bread whose ingredients originated in, say, Kansas or the Dakotas.

And as for "disruption," it is difficult to foresee anything worse than the economic disruption occasioned by the infamous wheat deal of 1972, which had unhappy inflationary consequences for every American.

If the Russians can get along without American grain, well and good. No one wants to see them starve. Rather than investing millions in an uncertain struggle- by- proxy in Angola, we could spend the money to stopkpile this grain the Russians don't need.

The world's grain reserves are down to a mere 30 days' supply, a perilously low level. Everything the American farmer can produce is going to be desperately needed by the earth's burgeoning population in the coming decades — and that includes the Russians if they have many more bad harvests or are unable to achieve a dramatic improvement in their agricultural productivity.

To restate it then, the President is right when he argues that any attempt to coerce the Kremlin before the eyes of the world would be counterproductive. Far better if quiet diplomacy — the "limited measures" he mentioned but did not specify — can bring about a solution in Angola.

But if at the same time the United States does not also make it quietly plain to the Kremlin that, if push comes to shove, we are perfectly willing to keep our grain for ourselves or sell it elsewhere, then we will be throwing away a bargaining tool of immense value.

During a hike in the woods a troop of boy scouts came across an abandoned section of railroad track. Each, in turn, tried walking the rails but eventually lost his balance and tumbled off.

Suddenly two of the boys, after considerable whispering, offered to bet that they could both walk the entire length of the track without falling off. Challenged to make good their boast, the two boys jumped up on opposite rails, extended a hand to balance each other, and walked the entire section of track with no difficulty whatever.

There, in a nutshell, is the principle of modern business and community living. The day of the hermit and the lone wolf are gone forever. We do things better, we produce more, and we live better by helping each other. The fellow who lends a helping hand benefits himself at the same time as he helps the other fellow.

The reverse is also true. When we don't help each other, when we don't cooperate, the whole system starts to rattle and shake.

The difference between a good company and a poor one, an effective department and an inefficient one, is often reflected in the cooperation, or lack of it, among the people who work there. When people help each other, freely and voluntarily, there's a spirit of teamwork that makes a department or company really go — a pleasure to be associated with. When there's no cooperation — no spirit of the helping hand freely given— whatmight have been pleasant jobs become grudging chores.

Do you recall when Edmund Hillary and his native guide, Tenzing, made their historic climb of Mt. Everest? Coming down from the peak Hillary suddenly lost his footing. Tenzing held the line taut and kept them both from falling by digging his ax into the ice. Later Tenzing refused any special credit for saving Hillary's life; he considered it a routine part of the job. As he put it: "Mountain climbers always help each other."

Should the rest of us be any different?

'URBAN NIGHTMARE' IS WORLDWIDE

The name Curtiba will mean nothing to most Americans. Neither will Lyallpur. They happen to be two cities in Brazil and Pakistan which have joined the list of world cities having a million or more inhabitants.

As recently as 1950, only 75 ceities on earth were this large. Today, the list has grown to 191, with Curtiba and Lyallpur joining such better- known cities as Vancouver, Damascus and Odessa.

Only a decade from now, the rollcall will have increased to 273, with Siberia's Krasnoyarsk and Madagascar's Tananarive coming in alongside Cuglin, Aleppo and Kabul.

Not only that, but cities with 10 million or more people will likely include Mexico City, Sao Paulo, Los Angeles, Shanghai, Peking, London, Bombay, Calcutta, Osaka- Kobe, Seoul, Buenosi Aires, Paris, Rio De Janiero and Cairo in addition to New York and Tokyo.

In 1985, "more than 800 million people will be living in a sprawling urban nightmare — one in six of the human race," write London Sunday times reporters Rosemary Righter and Peter Wilsher, as quoted in the world press review magazine Atlas.

The horrendous living conditions endoured by Calcutt'as present populatoin of nine million are well known. But even in the more advanced countries, runaway urbanization is reaching the breaking point.

Tokyo, whose population increased from 3.5 million in 1945 to nearly 12 million today, now builds 120,000 dwelling units a year. Yet its housing shortage is estimated at well over half a million. Whole families are crowded into rooms of 40 square feet.

The Paris newspaper Le Monde, also quoted by Atlas, cites a report by the french Association of Big City Mayors warnings that more and more cities in france face bankruptcy.

In Nantes, Lille, Besancon, Toulon, Le Havre and versailles, the diagnosis is identical, says the newspaper. "As an ever-increasing tide of people flows from the countryside metropolises, the cities fight a losing battle trying to adapt their resources to their indispensable and irreducible expenses."

This phenomenon of urbanization would be taking place even if world population were not growing by leaps and bounds. But absolute population growth, which every nation is experiencing to greater or lesser degree, greatly hastens the arrival of "the urban nightmare."

GOOD NEWS!

Some good news has come to light. An authority on the diagnosis and solution of management problems in government and business has said that federal pay scales are lacking in incentives. There is too little spread between the lowest and the highest pay scales.

According to Business Week magazine, the problem is particularly bad in the five top levels which include all presidential appointees and members of both houses of Congress – the top "ruling" hierarchy of the United States. Since the additional pay is relatively small, why should a minor functionary in the lowest category work his head off to achieve bureaucratic recognition as the head of a major agency? The heavy increase in worry and risk of exposure to the vagaries of political fortune would hardly be worth perhaps a mere 15 per cent increase in salary. This is good news for the taxpayer. Maybe fewer people will seek government jobs if the salary at the top of the pile is not too tempting. Uncle Samalready has a $33 billion payroll and 2.7 million civilian employees. It seems like that should be enough.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Despite the cordial smiles that abounded during the recent visit of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to Washington, his secret talks with U.S. leaders were marked by bitter complaints against the CIA.

The fluttering blue and white Israeli flags along downtown streets, the warm greeting by President Ford on a rainy White House lawn and Rabin's address to Congress created an impressino that U.S.-Israeli relations were trouble-free.

In private talks, however, Rabin pulled out sheafs of top secret Israeli intelligence reports in an attempt to show the CIA and its recently departed director William Colby tried to sundermine Israel.

Colby advised key senators late last year that Israel had a respectable military advantage over its Arab neighbors. Partly as a result, President Fod is asking only $1.8 billion in aid for Israel, at least $500 million less than the Israelis are seeking.

But during his visit, Rabin denounced Colby's estimates as incomplete, citing figures from his own highly respected intelligence services. For instance, he charged, Colby had de-emphasized Jordan's 600 to 700 tanks and another 1,000 tanks in Iraq.

Rabin was particularly furious over the CIA's estimates on Iraq which supplied three large units of troops to the Arabs int he 1973 war. At that time, Rabin acidly pointed out here, the Iraqis were distracted by Kurdish rebels.

Recently, however, to Israel's dismay, the CIA has withdrawn its support of the Kurds, thus freeing four more Iraqi divisions for possible action against Israel.

In addition, Rabin said the United States is unrealistic in thinking that Saudi Arabia, with its cophisticated U.S. arms, is not a potential Israeli opponent.

Meanwhile, the Soviet bloc, according to Rabin's top secret reports, is replenishing its Arab friends with planes, tanks and other war supplies at a rate five times faster than the United States is restocking Israel.

Indeed, observed Rabin during one conference, Israel has had to incorporate Russian equipment captured from the Arabvs into its own military forces. The problem is, ne noted sardonically, that Israel cannot buy Russian arms and ammunitioin.

KOREA CAPER: In a wild journalistic career missed by congressional investigators, the CIA once tried to bribe the Communist world's most famous newsman, Wilfred Burchett, into defecting to the United States for $100,000.

Defection by the talented Australian whose byline is familiar all over the Communist world would have been a juicy intelligence and publicity coup fort he United States.

The bizaarre idea of buying off Burchett originated tiwht Maj. Gen. Blackshear Bryan, a top U.S. negotiator at Panmunjom, Korea, in September 1953. He discussed it with a U.S. newsman, a U.S. intelligence officer in WorldWar II, who was an acquaintance of Burchett.

The newsman sat down with the CIA and drafted a plan in which the $100,000 would be offered to Burchett as he and the newman walked down a Panmiunjom path. At the end of the path was a U.S. landing pad where a helicopter wouldbe ready to spirit off Burchett.

The newsman, who asked that his name be withheld because he still may visit Communist countries, told us that his purpose in serving as intermediary was to force the CIA to get information for him on two captured friends. The friends, correspondents Don Dixon and Richard Applegate, had been seized in a yacht off Hong Kong by Red China.

Skeptical oftthe Burchett plan's success, the newsman nevertheless raised it with the Communist reporter before they began their walk. "My news organization can offer you $100,000 for your life story," the newsman said. "Plus we'll take very good care of you." The $100,000 was to be CIA funds.

But Burchett had a wife and newborn child in Peking and also apparently liked his life as a globe-trotting Communist star reporter. He gave the U.S. newsman no encouragement. When the newsman-intermediary advised that the scheme be dropped, the CIA cancelled "Operation Burchett."

Footnote: The newsman told us he had been promised the scoop on the defection as part of the agreement. "Besides," he said, "don't forget, in those days we all felt differently about the CIA."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kennedy, Reuther and Co.:
Whjere the Assault on CIA began

WASHINGTON — Actually, the late Bobby Kennedy was the first powerful politico to attempt to thwart the CIA's inflexible anti-Soviet policy; then try to bypass it; and finally break its "cover."

Bobby's anti-CIA campaign began back in 1962 when, during long periods of the late President Kennedy's illness, Robert, through Kenny O'Donnell and Larry O'Brien, controlled the White House.

Much of this operation developed in collaboration with the Reuther brothers, Walter and Victor. The latter, last of the Reuthers, is still around and vigorous.

Long ago, he developed strong antipathy against inflexible anti-Sovietism and a deep personal hatred of labor chief George Meany, who personifies all opposition to any dealings with Moscow. At that time Victor Reuther was head of the United Auto Workers' international affairs department.

According to sources privy to the inner operations of international intelligence, Bobby Kennedy arranged a secret conference in 1962. Purpose was to skim a million dollars off some government fund. Then to dispatch it covertly to Italy. There, it was to be used to "convince" Italian labor leaders to merge their three organizations into one front.

Biggest of the three Italian national union centers was the Confederazione Generale Italiana del Lavoro (CGIL). This was, and is, Soviet-dominated. It's affiliated with the Moscow-controlled World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU), from whose Prague headquarters I was physically heaved some years ago.

The result of merging the CGIL with the other two confederations, of course, would have been to hand the smaller Christian Democrat, Social Democrat and Socialist labor syndicates over to the powerful Communist Party allies.

This would have put Italy's entire labor force under "the line." Giving this little heed, Bobby Kennedy developed his strategy for a united Italian labor front.

To his secret conference he invited Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Walter Reuther and two or three others. CIA men were not among them.

But it didn't take long for Meany to learn of the secret session on united front policy, which he has been and still is battling. Over to the White Houe he went. It was the Bronx-Irish plumber eyeballing it with the Boston Brahman. President Kennedy soon reached for the phone. Later the two Kennedy brothers talked. Bobby was told to get out of international politics.

But the assault on the CIA rolled on. Victor Reuther never let up. Neither did a little-known Senator called Eugene McCarthy or the global J. William Fulbright. For years -- especially in 1966 -- McCarthy tried to get a Senate committee to investigate the CIA. Apparently this bug floated through the Northwest. Idaho's Frank Church finally did get one to smash the cover.

But Fulbright, back in 1966, was more subtle. He wanted to take surveillance of the CIA from the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees. And he saw his big opening in 1966 when the CIA got a new Director, ex-newsman Richard McGarrah Helms. Casually Fulbright said he heard that the CIA was in domestic affairs -- perhaps interfering in union elections.

That was in July (1966). Well, he might have heard this from Victor Reuther. On May 22 that year Vic Reuther got himself interviewed by a very friendly West Coast reporter during the United Auto Workers Long Beach (Calif.) convention.

Victor charged that the CIA was operating through Meany and the AFL-CIO's international affairs department. There was no evidence that either Meany or the national labor headquarters itself were fronting for any intelligence service when the AFL people helped fight off Soviet-subsidized labor operations in post-war Europe.

There was, of course, and is, what could be called a labor desk in the CIA. Why not? Some day it will be understood that aside from jet fighters and sophisticated rockets, labor organizations have been the Soviets' most powerful weapons.

But Meany wasn't pitching for the CIA. He operated on his own -- all the way from tens of thousands of CARE packages dispatched to anti-Communist leaders weakened by years in Nazi concentration camps to actual cash gifts to free-world anti-Communist unioins.

However, the Victor Reuther charge stuck. It was the first bullseye salvo. Soon, from Finland to Chile to Japan, any anti-Communist union linked in any way to American unions or sympathetic to the U.S. was charged by the Soviet-controlled opposition with being a CIA spy front. This hurt the anti-Communists.

And it avalanched to the grim cover-cracking intelligence smashing which can be seen here on the boards daily.

As for Bill Colby, goodby Mr. Chips.

5 witnesses claim worker threatened

ST. LOUIS— Five witnesses to an alleged confrontation Oct. 24 at the Noranda Aluminum construction site near New Madrid claim they saw the president of Cape Girardeau Local 282, Laborers International Union of North America, make a threatening gesture toward a labor foreman and saw another laborer attempt to strike the foreman.

The witnesses, all members of Local 282, testified Wednesday afternoon in U.S. District Court here as the government concluded its case against Local 282 President Fred D. "Nook" Kelley, secretary-treasurer Paul P. Menz and laborers Robert Worthy and John Cason.

Although the witnesses gave similar testimony as to what they saw occur, some gave conflicting statements as to what Kelley said during the alleged incident. Three of the witnesses said Kelley threatened to kill the foreman.

The government, represented by Ronald Jenkins and Marsha Johnson, attempted to show that Kelley and Menz arrived at the Noranda job site the morning of Oct. 24 in two cars with several other men, including Local 282 members and relatives of Kelley, and that Kelley and Worthy became involved in the dispute with Ralph E. Brandt, labor foreman on the job.

Brandt, Jack Tomlin, William L. Strickland, James E. Hopper and Arlan McCall, all members of Local 282, offered the testimony during the third day of the jury trial which is expected to conclude Friday following two days of appearances by defense witnesses.

The witnesses testified that Menz, driving the local's Cadillac, and Kelley, driving his blue Lincoln Continental, arrived at the job site about 9 a.m. with several other men.

The witnesses identified the other men as Claude A. "Nip" Kelley III and Dwight "Skip" Kelley, brothers of Fred Kelley; Jack L. Kitchen, recording secretary of the local; Jack Lancaster, Worthy; and one or two others whom they could not name.

Four of the witnesses said they saw Brandt talking to Menz outside the local's change trailer and saw Worthy swing at Brandt when he walked away from Menz. They testified that one of the men who accompanied Kelley and Menz to the site stepped in front of Worthy to stop him and shortly thereafter Kelley, with his hand in his pocket, raised his right arm into Brandt's face.

Brandt testified that he was asked to meet with Menz, who also is business agent of the local, and when he did, Menz told him he was appointing Dallas Schaffer as foreman and Leonard Beckett as stewart because Bobby Jackman was taken from the job.

Brandt said Menz told him the circulation of a petition calling for a special election of officers by a group within the union was "illegal and this stuff has got to stop."

Brandt testified that during the conversation with Menz, the business agent told him, "You have always been good to me and I like you."

Brandt said Worthy, who was standing nearby, heard Menz say he liked him and Worthy came over and said, "I don't like you." He said Worthy then "swung at me a couple of times and Kitchen and someone else got in front of him."

Brandt said he backed away a distance of about 15 or 20 feet near Fred Kelley, and Kelley asked him if he (Brandt) had said something to him (Kelley). Brandt said Kelley turned to others in the group and said, "He (Brandt) won't shut up...he just won't shut up."

Brandt said Fred Kelley then stuck his hand, which was in his coat pcoket, into his (Brandt's) face a distance of about six inches away and said "You better shut up or I'll blow your head off."

Strickland testified he saw Kelley make the gesture and when Kelley later turned away from Brandt he saw the square wooden handle of what appeared to be a pistol in Kelley's coat pocket.

Tomlin's testimony as to what was said was different from that of Brandt.

Tomlin, who said he was standing about six feet away, testified that Kelley asked Brandt if he "appreciated everything I've done for you." He said Kelley asked Brandt about the circulation of the petition and, cursing him, stuck his hand which was inside his coat pocket into Brandt's face

Tomlin said Brandt turned to Menz and asked, "Is this what you want?" Tomlin said Kelley continued cursing Brandt and quoted him as saying "He (Brandt) just keeps on talking. Do you want your--head blowed off? If that's what you want, you'll get it."

Tomlin testified that Worthy then became involved and told Brandt "I've got something against you," and swung at him." He said both Worthy and Kelley continued cursing Brandt and that Kelley told Brandt to "get out of here."

Tomlin said as Brandt began to leave, Kelley pointed at Brandt and said, "you're a ——dead man." He said Worthy repeated Kelley's statement and Kelley, turning to Strickland and himself, pointed his finger and said, "Do you hear that?"

The other witnesses testified they were too far away to hear what was being said. Other than Tomlin, all testified that Worthy swung at Brandt prior to the confrontation between Kelley and Brandt.

Earlier Wednesday, Bobby Jackman, who, with Jim Bollinger, is seeking the offices held by Kelley and Menz, testified that on the night of Oct. 22, Menz went to his house at Benton to discuss rumors that Jackman was seeking the position of secretary-treasurer, and he observed what appeared to be a .38-caliber pistol lying on the seat of the Cadillac owned by the local and being driven by Menz.

The government, through testimony of Dr. Robert C. Briner, director of the Regional Crime Laboratory at Cape Girardeau, attempted to show that Kelley used a .38- caliber pistol tofire three shots at a pickup truck in whichwere riding union members and a former memberof he localin South Cape Girardeau Oct. 23.

Dr. Briner testified that a slug which was found on the parking lot of Yarbro's Saveway Station near Highway 74 and South Sprigg, where the shooting allegedly occurred, was either from a .38- caliber pistol or a .357 magnum.

In addition, an agent in the FBI's laboratory at Washington, James testified that body filler from the truck matched that which was found on the slug.

Another FBI agent, George Miller of St. Louis, who was one of the officers to arrest Menz on Oct. 30, testified that a box of .38-caliber ammunition was found in the glove compartment of Local 282's Cadillac when the car searched upon Menz' arrest. The box, he said, contained two bullets.

Cape Girardeau PoliceSgt. Michael B. Seib testified that the spentbullet was found by another officer in the driveway to the stationabout 10 feet from Sprigg Street. Thethree laborers had said they pulled the truck onto the lot after three shots were fired at them from the local's Cadillac just south of the station.

Over objections from a defense lawyer, the government was allowed to enter into evidence statements made by Kelley, Menz and Cason to Cape Girardeau police.

During cross- examination of Sgt. Seib, the defense asked why police officers would not allow the three to sign a complaint against Joseph M. Sachse, one of the laborer in the pickup truck, for firing a gun at them. Sgt. Seib said that decision was made by senior officers.

The three statements were given to police Oct. 27, four days after the alleged shooting with one of their attorneys present.

The statements indicate what the defense will argue occurred the day of the alleged shooting when the defense begins testimony.

The three said in their separate police statements that Sachse fired a pistol at them at Cape sewage treatment construction site prior to the alleged shooting on the pickup. They also claimed in the statements that they were headed for Illinois after the incident at the construction site.

Kelley, Menz and Cason were named in an indictment by the Organized Crime and Racketeering Strike Force Grand Jury for interfering with the rights of union members in connectionwith the shooting incident, and Kelley, Menz and Worthy are charged with interference in connection with the incident near New Madrid.

All four also are charged in the same indictment with conspiringto interfere with union members rights to circulate a petition or petitions calling for a special election of officers.

The last union election was held in 1974 and the next scheduled election is May 1977. The petitions which thelaborers circulated cited several grievances with the unionleadership, including irregularities in voting in 1974.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes in the rates for most out-of-state calls.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company has filed a new schedule of interstate rates with the Federal Communications Commission which increases charges for most Long Distance calls.

The Company has asked that the new rate schedule become effective on February 12, 1976. The new rates are designed to increase total revenues from interstate service by about two percent. Even with these proposed increases, interstate Long Distance rates will be generally what they were in 1953.

- Calls requiring operator assistance will generally cost more.
- Coast-to-coast dial-direct calls will cost less.
- Short- and medium-distance dial-direct calls will generally cost more.
- But customers can still save by calling during discount periods.

The rate structure remains basically unchanged from the rate plan put into effect March 9, 1975. The one-minute minimum charging period still applies on calls dialed direct from residence or business telephones. While charges for most short- and medium-distance interstate dial-direct calls will increase, some longer-distance calls of this type will decrease.

Discounts of 35 and 60 percent continue to apply on all calls dialed direct during "Evening" and "Night & Weekend" periods, respectively. "Evening" rates will continue to apply on five legal holidays: New Year's Day, July 4th, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day.

For calls requiring operator assistance—collect, credit card, coin, hotel guest, third party and person-to-person—the rates will go up, reflecting sharply increased costs. The present three-minute minimum charging period on these calls will be retained, and rates will remain the same throughout the day and night. The 35 and 60 percent discounts will apply to additional minutes of these operator-assisted calls.

Interstate Dial-Direct One-Minute Rates

| Mileage of Call | Full Rate Weekday | 35% Discount Evening | 60% Discount Night & Weekend |
|---|---|---|---|
| 23-30 miles (Hartford, Conn./ Springfield, Mass.) | 31¢ | 20¢ | 12¢ |
| 431-925 miles (New Orleans, La./ Detroit, Mich.) | 50¢ | 32¢ | 20¢ |
| 1911-3000 miles (New York, N.Y./ Los Angeles, Calif.) | 54¢ | 35¢ | 21¢ |

Interstate Operator-Assisted Three-Minute Rates

| Mileage of Call | Station-to-Station at All Times | Person-to-Person at All Times |
|---|---|---|
| 23-30 miles (Hartford, Conn./ Springfield, Mass.) | $1.00 | $2.00 |
| 431-925 miles (New Orleans, La./ Detroit, Mich.) | $2.05 | $3.15 |

"Weekday" rates apply from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. "Evening" rates apply from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Friday. "Night & Weekend" rates apply from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. every night, all Saturday, and all Sunday, except 5 to 11 p.m. on Sunday. Dial-direct rates apply on all interstate calls (excluding Alaska until March 29, 1976) completed from a residence or business phone without operator assistance. They also apply on calls placed with an operator from a residence or business phone where direct dialing facilities are not available. For dial-direct rates to Alaska and Hawaii, check your operator.

Included in the new rates are increases for most interstate private line services and interstate Wide Area Telecommunications Service (WATS), used mainly by business customers.

Dial-direct service, already available to Hawaii, will also be available to Alaska starting March 29. Charges on most Long Distance calls to Alaska and Hawaii will be decreased. These rates are filed to be effective March 29, 1976.

Charges on most Long Distance calls to Mexico and Canada will be increased. These rates are filed to be effective March 29, 1976 for Mexico and April 17, 1976 for Canada.

On January 19, 1976 the Federal Communications Commission announced that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company may file for an increase in interstate Long Distance rates. The new rate schedules and supporting data have been filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

Illmo-Scott City superintendent says Cape to pursue annexation

SCOTT CITY — J. A. Holmes, superintendent of Illmo- Scott City R-1 School District, says he has learned that the city of Cape Girardeau intends to further pursue its efforts to set aside a court order permitting the school district and other Scott County interests to intervene in Cape Girardeau's annexation suit to take portions of northern Scott County into the city.

A ruling made last week in the Springfield Court of Appeals denied Cape Girardeau's request to have Scott County Circuit Judge Marshall Craig withdraw his Jan. 15 order permitting the school district to intervene in the annexation suit.

Holmes said, "It would appear to me that our school district should have been a defendent in this annexation lawsuit by the City of Cape Girardeau from the very beginning, since several acres of our school district is a part of the annexation plan. I have b eenled to believe that the Constitution of the United States of America provides due process of the law for everyone."

Fire destroys Dexter garage

DEXTER — A roaring fire at 11:30 a.m. Thusday destroyed Sneed's Auto Body Shop in the Fosterville community, located west of Dexter on Highway 60.

The cause of the blaze was not determined, but it was learned that no one was in the garage at the time the blaze was spotted.

The building was quickly consumed by the heavy flames, and two vehicles in the garage also were destroyed.

One Dexter fireman suffered a cut hand, but otherwise there were no injuries.

All three of Dexter's fire trucks responded to the blaze, when it appeared that adjoining homes might be in danger.

5 witnesses claim worker threatened

ST. LOUIS— Five witnesses to an alleged confrontation Oct. 24 at the Noranda Aluminum construction site near New Madrid claim they saw the president of Cape Girardeau Local 282, Laborers International Union of North America, make a threatening gesture toward a labor foreman and saw another laborer attempt to strike the foreman.

The witnesses, all members of Local 282, testified Wednesday afternoon in U.S. District Court here as the government concluded its case against Local 282 President Fred D. "Nook" Kelley, secretary-treasurer Paul P. Menz and laborers Robert Worthy and John Cason.

Although the witnesses gave similar testimony as to what they saw occur, some gave conflicting statements as to what Kelley said during the alleged incident. Three of the witnesses said Kelley threatened to kill the foreman.

The government, represented by Ronald Jenkins and Marsha Johnson, attempted to show that Kelley and Menz arrived at the Noranda job site the morning of Oct. 24 in two cars with several other men, including Local 282 members and relatives of Kelley, and that Kelley and Worthy became involved in the dispute with Ralph E. Brandt, labor foreman on the job.

Brandt, Jack Tomlin, William L. Strickland, James E. Hopper and Arlan McCall, all members of Local 282, offered the testimony during the third day of the jury trial which is expected to conclude Friday following two days of appearances by defense witnesses.

The witnesses testified that Menz, driving the local's Cadillac, and Kelley, driving his blue Lincoln Continental, arrived at the job site about 9 a.m. with several other men.

The witnesses identified the other men as Claude A. "Nip" Kelley III and Dwight "Skip" Kelley, brothers of Fred Kelley; Jack L. Kitchen, recording secretary of the local; Jack Lancaster, Worthy; and one or two others whom they could not name.

Four of the witnesses said they saw Brandt talking to Menz outside the local's change trailer and saw Worthy swing at Brandt when he walked away from Menz. They testified that one of the men who accompanied Kelley and Menz to the site stepped in front of Worthy to stop him and shortly thereafter Kelley, with his hand in his pocket, raised his right arm into Brandt's face.

Brandt testified that he was asked to meet with Menz, who also is business agent of the local, and when he did, Menz told him he was appointing Dallas Schaffer as foreman and Leonard Beckett as stewart because Bobby Jackman was taken from the job.

Brandt said Menz told him the circulation of a petition calling for a special election of officers by a group within the union was "illegal and this stuff has got to stop."

Brandt testified that during the conversation with Menz, the business agent told him, "You have always been good to me and I like you."

Brandt said Worthy, who was standing nearby, heard Menz say he liked him and Worthy came over and said, "I don't like you." He said Worthy then "swung at me a couple of times and Kitchen and someone else got in front of him."

Brandt said he backed away a distance of about 15 or 20 feet near Fred Kelley, and Kelley asked him if he (Brandt) had said something to him (Kelley). Brandt said Kelley turned to others in the group and said, "He (Brandt) won't shut up...he just won't shut up."

Brandt said Fred Kelley then stuck his hand, which was in his coat pcoket, into his (Brandt's) face a distance of about six inches away and said "You better shut up or I'll blow your head off."

Strickland testified he saw Kelley make the gesture and when Kelley later turned away from Brandt he saw the square wooden handle of what appeared to be a pistol in Kelley's coat pocket.

Tomlin's testimony as to what was said was different from that of Brandt.

Tomlin, who said he was standing about six feet away, testified that Kelley asked Brandt if he "appreciated everything I've done for you." He said Kelley asked Brandt about the circulation of the petition and, cursing him, stuck his hand which was inside his coat pocket into Brandt's face

Tomlin said Brandt turned to Menz and asked, "Is this what you want?" Tomlin said Kelley continued cursing Brandt and quoted him as saying "He (Brandt) just keeps on talking. Do you want your--head blowed off? If that's what you want, you'll get it."

Tomlin testified that Worthy then became involved and told Brandt "I've got something against you," and swung at him." He said both Worthy and Kelley continued cursing Brandt and that Kelley told Brandt to "get out of here."

Tomlin said as Brandt began to leave, Kelley pointed at Brandt and said, "you're a ——dead man." He said Worthy repeated Kelley's statement and Kelley, turning to Strickland and himself, pointed his finger and said, "Do you hear that?"

The other witnesses testified they were too far away to hear what was being said. Other than Tomlin, all testified that Worthy swung at Brandt prior to the confrontation between Kelley and Brandt.

Earlier Wednesday, Bobby Jackman, who, with Jim Bollinger, is seeking the offices held by Kelley and Menz, testified that on the night of Oct. 22, Menz went to his house at Benton to discuss rumors that Jackman was seeking the position of secretary-treasurer, and he observed what appeared to be a .38-caliber pistol lying on the seat of the Cadillac owned by the local and being driven by Menz.

The government, through testimony of Dr. Robert C. Briner, director of the Regional Crime Laboratory at Cape Girardeau, attempted to show that Kelley used a .38- caliber pistol tofire three shots at a pickup truck in whichwere riding union members and a former memberof he localin South Cape Girardeau Oct. 23.

Dr. Briner testified that a slug which was found on the parking lot of Yarbro's Saveway Station near Highway 74 and South Sprigg, where the shooting allegedly occurred, was either from a .38- caliber pistol or a .357 magnum.

In addition, an agent in the FBI's laboratory at Washington, James testified that body filler from the truck matched that which was found on the slug.

Another FBI agent, George Miller of St. Louis, who was one of the officers to arrest Menz on Oct. 30, testified that a box of .38-caliber ammunition was found in the glove compartment of Local 282's Cadillac when the car searched upon Menz' arrest. The box, he said, contained two bullets.

Cape Girardeau PoliceSgt. Michael B. Seib testified that the spentbullet was found by another officer in the driveway to the stationabout 10 feet from Sprigg Street. The three laborers had said they pulled the truck onto the lot after three shots were fired at them from the local's Cadillac just south of the station.

Over objections from a defense lawyer, the government was allowed to enter into evidence statements made by Kelley, Menz and Cason to Cape Girardeau police.

During cross- examination of Sgt. Seib, the defense asked why police officers would not allow the three to sign a complaint against Joseph M. Sachse, one of the laborer in the pickup truck, for firing a gun at them. Sgt. Seib said that decision was made by senior officers.

The three statements were given to police Oct. 27, four days after the alleged shooting with one of their attorneys present.

The statements indicate what the defense will argue occurred the day of the alleged shooting when the defense begins testimony.

The three said in their separate police statements that Sachse fired a pistol at them at Cape sewage treatment construction site prior to the alleged shooting on the pickup. They also claimed in the statements that they were headed for Illinois after the incident at the construction site.

Kelley, Menz and Cason were named in an indictment by the Organized Crime and Racketeering Strike Force Grand Jury for interfering with the rights of union members in connectionwith the shooting incident, and Kelley, Menz and Worthy are charged with interference in connection with the incident near New Madrid.

All four also are charged in the same indictment with conspiringto interfere with union members rights to circulate a petition or petitions calling for a special election of officers.

The last union election was held in 1974 and the next scheduled election is May 1977. The petitions which thelaborers circulated cited several grievances with the unionleadership, including irregularities in voting in 1974.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes in the rates for most out-of-state calls.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company has filed a new schedule of interstate rates with the Federal Communications Commission which increases charges for most Long Distance calls.

The Company has asked that the new rate schedule become effective on February 12, 1976. The new rates are designed to increase total revenues from interstate service by about two percent. Even with these proposed increases, interstate Long Distance rates will be generally what they were in 1953.

- Calls requiring operator assistance will generally cost more.
- Coast-to-coast dial-direct calls will cost less.
- Short- and medium-distance dial-direct calls will generally cost more.
- But customers can still save by calling during discount periods.

The rate structure remains basically unchanged from the rate plan put into effect March 9, 1975. The one-minute minimum charging period still applies on calls dialed direct from residence or business telephones. While charges for most short- and medium-distance interstate dial-direct calls will increase, some longer-distance calls of this type will decrease.

Discounts of 35 and 60 percent continue to apply on all calls dialed direct during "Evening" and "Night & Weekend" periods, respectively. "Evening" rates will continue to apply on five legal holidays: New Year's Day, July 4th, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day.

For calls requiring operator assistance—collect, credit card, coin, hotel guest, third party and person-to-person—the rates will go up, reflecting sharply increased costs. The present three-minute minimum charging period on these calls will be retained, and rates will remain the same throughout the day and night. The 35 and 60 percent discounts will apply to additional minutes of these operator-assisted calls.

| Interstate Dial-Direct One-Minute Rates | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Mileage of Call | Full Rate Weekday | 35% Discount Evening | 60% Discount Night & Weekend |
| 23-30 miles (Hartford, Conn./ Springfield, Mass.) | 31¢ | 20¢ | 12¢ |
| 431-925 miles (New Orleans, La./ Detroit, Mich.) | 50¢ | 32¢ | 20¢ |
| 1911-3000 miles (New York, N.Y./ Los Angeles, Calif.) | 54¢ | 35¢ | 21¢ |
| Additional minutes are always less in all rate periods. Rates quoted do not include tax. | | | |

| Interstate Operator-Assisted Three-Minute Rates | | |
|---|---|---|
| Mileage of Call | Station-to-Station at All Times | Person-to-Person at All Times |
| 23-30 miles (Hartford, Conn./ Springfield, Mass.) | $1.00 | $2.00 |
| 431-925 miles (New Orleans, La./ Detroit, Mich.) | $2.05 | $3.15 |
| 1911-3000 miles (New York, N.Y./ Los Angeles, Calif.) | $2.25 | $3.55 |
| Additional minutes for operator-assisted calls are charged at the lower dial-direct rates. Rates quoted do not include tax. | | |

"Weekday" rates apply from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. "Evening" rates apply from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Friday. "Night & Weekend" rates apply from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. every night, all Saturday, and all Sunday, except 5 to 11 p.m. on Sunday. Dial-direct rates apply on all interstate calls (excluding Alaska until March 29, 1976) completed from a residence or business phone without operator assistance. They also apply on calls placed with an operator from a residence or business phone where direct dialing facilities are not available. For dial-direct rates to Alaska and Hawaii, check your operator.

Included in the new rates are increases for most interstate private line services and interstate Wide Area Telecommunications Service (WATS), used mainly by business customers.

Dial-direct service, already available to Hawaii, will also be available to Alaska starting March 29. Charges on most Long Distance calls to Alaska and Hawaii will be decreased. These rates are filed to be effective March 29, 1976.

Charges on most Long Distance calls to Mexico and Canada will be increased. These rates are filed to be effective March 29, 1976 for Mexico and April 17, 1976 for Canada.

On January 19, 1976 the Federal Communications Commission announced that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company may file for an increase in interstate Long Distance rates. The new rate schedules and supporting data have been filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

50 years ago

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — "They're my kids, too," says Daniel Molinoff. "Nobody was going to take them away from me."

So he sued for full custody of his sons, Michael, 7, and Joel, 5. He settled on a joint custody arrangement whereby he and his wife each take care of the boys for half the year.

In the first week of the month, they live with their father Monday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. In the second week they stay with him Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. They have six weeks' vacation with each parent.

Molinoff and his ex-wife, Marilyn, both rent apartments here where the boys continue to go to school and see their friends. They keep clothes and toys at both homes.

"I think it's working out for everyone," says Molinoff, 36, whose part-time career as attorney and businessman allows him to devote full days to Michael and Joel.

He fixes their breakfast, does the laundry, takes them to school, picks them up, goes on field trips with them, helps them with homework, writes stories for them, takes them canoeing.

He traded in his sports car for a station wagon.

"I think they love me and their mother," says Molinoff. "No matter how difficult it may be, it's still better to have both parents around.

"I balance everything against the fact that it's better to have a father in their life than not."

How about Michael and Joel?

"I don't know. I don't see any evidence they dislike it," Molinoff says. "It's not disruptive. They see the advantages and a little adventure in both. Probably half their friends come from real broken homes.

"I think there's an incorrect prejudice that kids must have roots in only one place," he says. "My kids have definite security and definite roots. I think they can be just as secure in two loving homes as one."

There's a bigger prejudice that Molinoff has faced: That children always belong with their mother.

"After a divorce, most fathers wouldn't know what to do with their children and don't want them," he says.

He says most men just walk away. They take a color TV, a car, their clothes. They move to New York and maybe see their kids twice a month.

"But I always spent a lot of time with my kids, and there was no way I was going to do that," he says.

Even now, he says, his ex-wife is not delighted with the joint custody.

Despite talk of liberation, he says, "women are not keen about giving up what they think should be theirs. They see it as a loss of face and status."

Molinoff has encountered astonishment and hostility toward his joint custody. "At first I was looked at as an apparition, a freak," he recalls.

"But you're the man," expostulated the judge in the divorce. "Men don't get custody. They go out and work."

Most of the animosity has come from women, mothers, teachers and others who felt he was joking or being vindictive toward his former wife, at the children's expense.

Many mothers who picked up their children from school wouldn't talk to him at first. One teacher was hostile and haughty. He went along on a class field trip and the mothers stared.

After seeing his sincerity and his interest, they are accepting him gradually, perhaps wishing more fathers were half so concerned.

"At first I was that dirty bastard who took the children away from their mother. Now I'm that individual who has joint custody," he says.

Being a housewife is hard work, Molinoff admits, calling it a "humbling experience.

"And there's nothing glamorous about cooking or laundry or shopping for clothes or hassling at the supermarket."

Television cartoon shows drive him crazy.

Frustration is going to the circus and having one son want to go to the bathroom.

Frustration is going to the supermarket and having one son say: "Mommy lets us have hotdogs."

Often it's "Daddy, can I have some chewing gum? I have a sore throat. Can I have some towels?"

He often takes them to the park, shopping for antiques or digging for old bottles. He reads to them and writes his own short stories for Michael and Joel.

One concerns a land where there was no music because adults fought all the time. But their children discovered moldering musical instruments and began to play, finally bringing their elders together.

Dating is a problem, and Molinoff doesn't go out when his sons are around.

He says they understand: "Daddy has a friend. Daddy dates and Mommy dates. That's the way it is, and it has to be handled carefully."

At school, the children carefully divide their artwork and projects, so "this is for Mommy and this is for Daddy."

Chattering in the station wagon on the way home from school, Michael was asked if he ever missed his mother or father.

Cancer progress but no victory

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What has happened to the progress in cancer research? So many old people are dying with cancer.

My mother was in her 80s and suffered through two years of cancer. It is so painful for everyone concerned.

Has the money for cancer research been drastically reduced or what?

DEAR READER — Progress in treating cancer is alive and well. The American Cancer Society (ACS) reports that one in three persons is saved from cancer today while 25 years ago only one of four patients was saved. That's progress even if the battle hasn't been completely won. That is a gain in saving 55,000 lives a year. What's more the ACS claims that if all available tools were used properly the savings would actually be 111,000 lives a year.

Things have changed in the cancer picture. In a little more than 20 years the incidence of stomach cancer has decreased 63 per cent and cancer of the uterus 37 per cent. Lung cancer is up 125 per cent. Other cancers on the increase are cancer of the colon, prostate, pancreas and of the bladder in men (but decreased in women).

Note the big winner of the increased sweepstakes is lung cancer. About 90 per cent of lung cancer occurs in cigarette smokers and presumably most of these could be prevented. How? By simply not smoking. There is a 17-fold increased risk of death from lung cancer in the group who smoke just 20 cigarettes a day.

The American Cancer Society gives three reasons for the improved outlook in cancer. Early detection, treatment within four months of diagnosis and the use of new diagnostic and treatment methods.

Dr. Lewis Thomas, President of Memorial Sloan-Kettering, one of the nation's foremost cancer centers predicted recently that the mystery of cancer will be solved in 25 years. He thinks they all represent one disease and one basic mechanism controls all cancer.

He may be right. Certainly cancer is cell growth and replacement, a process necessary to our normal body functions, that has gone wild. When we understand the mechanisms of controlling the regeneration of cells and are able to control these fundamental life processes, we will certainly know enough to control cancer.

I think that is a strong argument for studying aging processes. When we unlock the secrets of basic cell regeneration and how to control this mechanism not only will we be able to do something dramatic about cancer, but we will have made a giant step toward preventing biological aging and many of the medical ills of our time.

Census Bureau reports children today are poorer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although there are fewer children in America today than there were five years ago, a larger percentage of them are poor.

This is one of the conclusions about poverty, child health care and family structure documented in a new publication called "America's Children 1976."

The 90-page book, sponsored by the National Council of Organizations for Children and Youth, is based on federal Census Bureau material. It outlines how changing attitudes about women, a rising divorce rate and several years of economic uncertainty have affected the nation's 66 million children under 18.

Some of the findings are:

—During 1974, about one in six children in America lived in families whose income was below the official federal poverty level, $5,038 for a family of four. This compares with about one in seven children in 1970.

—Ten million children, about one in six, were being raised by a single parent in 1974. This compares with about one in seven children four years earlier.

—Although the infant mortality rate has dropped about 25 per cent since 1960, it is still twice as high for nonwhite children as white children.

—In 1975, about two out of five children had mothers in the labor force, a 12 per cent increase over 1970.

The council, a coalition of 180 volunteer organizations concerned with children's issues, reported that because of a falling birth rate, the number of children under 18 decreased by 2.4 million, or 3.4 per cent, from 1970 to 1974.

The council also reported that in 1974, 10.1 million or 15.5 per cent of the nation's children lived below the official poverty line, up from 10.2 million or 14.9 per cent in 1970.

One children's advocate, Dr. Ken Keniston, said the most obvious reason that there is a larger percentage of poor children in the country today than there was a few years ago is because of the economic recession. "Everyone is worse off," he said.

A more subtle reason, said Keniston, who is chairman of the Carnegie Ccuncil on Children in New Haven, Conn., is that there are more government spending programs for older Americans who thus are moving out of poverty.

Young blind woman gets chance to teach

MARION, Ind. (AP) — Linda Garshwiler said all she wanted was a chance to prove a blind person can be a good school teacher. Now she has that chance.

"I'm just really excited that I have the chance to be in the classroom and prove to everyone that I can do the job," she said Tuesday.

As soon as she's moved in, Miss Garshwiler, 23, will go to work at Justice Junior High School here, teaching English literature and grammar to seventh and eighth graders.

Suzanne Allen

Miss Garshwiler, backed by the National Federation for the Blind, filed a suit in federal court last year a against Marion's school system, claiming she was discriminated against because she can't see.

She applied for an opening and was scheduled for an interview, but that was canceled when school officials learned she is blind.

She was finally hired after her attorneys and school board lawyers considered the matter.

"They offered me the job and they paid me the wages I would have earned for the past semester," she said of the out-of-court settlement.

Mark Maurer, president of the Indiana Federation for the Blind, said Miss Garshwiler's job is the first full-time teaching position ever obtained for a blind person through a lawsuit. He said a similar suit in Denver last year resulted in a part-time job for the plaintiff.

"Once this first step is established, people who are blind and are qualified will be able to get jobs in other areas," he said.

He said about 400 blind persons are teaching in regular classes across the nation, but none in Indiana.

Miss Garshwiler said that when she was a sophomore at St. Francis College in Fort Wayne, officials advised her to forget about teaching.

"I think they were looking out for my best interest — but I think I can do it," she said.

Parma woman accepted to medical school

PARMA–Suzanne C. Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, was recently notified of her acceptance to the University of Missouri-Columbia School of Medicine. She will begin study this fall.

Miss Allen graduated cum laude from Stephens College at Columbia in 1974. While there, she was a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, a female honorarium and did post-graduate work at UMC.

Former Morley woman receives ATP rating

PALOS HEIGHTS — Karen J. Irvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Irvin, has recently received the rating of air transport pilot (ATP).

Miss Irvin, a Richards high school graduate, joins a select circle of only 114 women pilots nationally who hold the ATP rating, which is needed by all commercial airline pilots. There are over 35,000 women pilots in the country. Only five other women in Illinois hold the ATP rating.

Miss Irvin has been flying since she took her first lesson in 1964 at 13. She soloed at age 16 and received her private certificate in 1967.

Miss Irvin received her private certificate in 1967, her instrument rating in 1968, a commercial certificate in 1971 and multi- engine rating in 1972. She also had aerobatic training in Phoenix Ariz. in August 1972.

While attending Illinois State University in Normal, Miss Irvin was the aerial traffic reporter for the Bloomington- Normal area from April to September 1973. She was also a fulltime flight instructor at the Bloomington Airport.

In the spring of 1973, she hired out as secretary- co-pilot of a charter freight and passenger airlines out Midway Airport. From September 1973 to June 1975, she was an instructor at Southwest City College in Chicago, teaching aviation- related courses.

Paul Irvin is a former resident of Morley.

DEAR POLLY — Many products are packed in boxes that are completely covered with foil or a waxed type paper. The "easy pouring" spout is under the paper covering that must be torn away before the spout can be pulled open. As a result much of the product falls between the box and the outer wrapping so is never used. Avoid this waste by placing a piece of masking tape right BELOW the pouring spout. In other words, tape the outer paper to the box and there is no slot for the product to fall through. This way one gets to use 100 per cent of the product bought. — SALLY J.

DEAR POLLY — Even sewing thread is expensive these days so I save thread by carefully removing basting threads after stitching to reuse for more basting. (Polly's note-As it is removed it could be wound around an empty spool to prevent tangles and knots.) — KATE.

DEAR POLLY — If you have a parakeet save the "wasted" seed from the cage and stir into a coffee can full of old grease. Let it harden, remove from the can, put in a net vegetable bag and hang in a tree to provide food for wild birds during the winter. — IDA.

Woman wants souvenir of love affair

Dear Ann Landers: Don't tell me I'm in a mess. I know it. What I need is some advice on how to handle the mess so it will be less hurtful and damaging to others.

I became involved with a married man who has a nice wife and three children. He never ran down his wife to me -- it's just that their life grew stale and I came along at a time when he needed a lift. Well, the "lift" developed into a fantastic love affair and now I am pregnant. He doesn't know about my condition and I don't think I should tell him.

Another man I've been seeing for over a year (no sex, just a great pal) would love to marry me but I've been stalling because of You Know Who. I feel certain my pal would marry me even though I am pregnant by someone else. I want this child desperately, Ann, not only as a lifelong "souvenir" of the man I love, but also because it might be my last chance to get pregnant. (I'm in my middle 30s.) What should I do? -- Anguished

Dear Anguished: If your "pal" will marry you even though you are pregnant with another man's child, you're shot full of luck, Lady. This is not what I'd call your common, everyday-variety fellow.

I see no reason to tell that married man whose wife and kids got "stale" that you are having the child. It's enough that "Pal" knows. In fact, stay a million miles away from the guy. Any ties would complicate your life tremendously -- and his, as well.

Dear Ann Landers: In all my 62 years, I never thought I would be writing to you, but I have a very serious problem.

My only son just married a pretty girl named Linda. About a week ago I phoned my new daughter-in-law and invited her to have lunch with me. I wanted to get to know her better. She said she wasn't feeling up to it.

My son called that same night and told me to stop pestering his wife. He said she needs time for herself and can't be bothered with my "nonsense."

That really hurt me, Ann. What should I do about this problem? I'm sure she misunderstood. -- New York Pop-In-Law

Dear Pop: I assume you set your son straight. If you didn't, you should have. And now that you know how they feel about your desire to become better acquainted, be careful about doing or saying anything that might be misinterpreted.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters from young adults complaining about how their parents impose on them, make demands and ruin their lives. Well, here's a switch for you.

Our married children all live nearby. They dump their children on us whenever they fee like it -- evenings, weekends vacations, whatever. They borrow furniture, money and our car. Everything we own they think is theirs.

My husband and I have a chance to buy a nice home 800 miles away where the winter months are like paradise. Would we be running out on our responsibilities if we moved? Tired Mama And Papa

Dear Tired: No way! You've earned peace and contentment. Call the van and start packing. And send me a postcard from paradise.

Census Bureau reports children today are poorer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although there are fewer children in America today than there were five years ago, a larger percentage of them are poor.

The 90-page book, sponsored by the National Council of Organizations for Children and Youth, is based on federal Census Bureau material. It outlines how changing attitudes about women, a rising divorce rate and several years of economic uncertainty have affected the nation's 66 million children under 18.

Some of the findings are:

—During 1974, about one in six children in America lived in families whose income was below the official federal poverty level, $5,038 for a family of four. This compares with about one in seven children in 1970.

—Ten million children, about one in six, were being raised by a single parent in 1974. This compares with about one in seven children four years earlier.

—Although the infant mortality rate has dropped about 25 per cent since 1960, it is still twice as high for nonwhite children as white children.

—In 1975, about two out of five children had mothers in the labor force, a 12 per cent increase over 1970.

The council, a coalition of 180 volunteer organizations concerned with children's issues, reported that because of a falling birth rate, the number of children under 18 decreased by 2.4 million, or 3.4 per cent, from 1970 to 1974.

The council also reported that in 1974, 10.1 million or 15.5 per cent of the nation's children lived below the official poverty line, up from 10.2 million or 14.9 per cent in 1970.

One children's advocate, Dr. Ken Keniston, said the most obvious reason that there is a larger percentage of poor children in the country today than there was a few years ago is because of the economic recession. "Everyone is worse off," he said.

A more subtle reason, said Keniston, who is chairman of the Carnegie Council on Children in New Haven, Conn., is that there are more government spending programs for older Americans who thus are moving out of poverty.

Young blind woman gets chance to teach

MARION, Ind. (AP) — Linda Garshwiler said all she wanted was a chance to prove a blind person can be a good school teacher. Now she has that chance.

"I'm just really excited that I have the chance to be in the classroom and prove to everyone that I can do the job," she said Tuesday.

As soon as she's moved in, Miss Garshwiler, 23, will go to work at Justice Junior High School here, teaching English literature and grammar to seventh and eighth graders.

Suzanne Allen

Miss Garshwiler, backed by the National Federation for the Blind, filed a suit in federal court last year a against Marion's school system, claiming she was discriminated against because she can't see.

She applied for an opening and was scheduled for an interview, but that was canceled when school officials learned she is blind.

She was finally hired after her attorneys and school board lawyers considered the matter.

"They offered me the job and they paid me the wages I would have earned for the past semester," she said of the out-of-court settlement.

Mark Maurer, president of the Indiana Federation for the Blind, said Miss Garshwiler's job is the first full-time teaching position ever obtained for a blind person through a lawsuit. He said a similar suit in Denver last year resulted in a part-time job for the plaintiff.

"Once this first step is established, people who are blind and are qualified will be able to get jobs in other areas," he said.

He said about 400 blind persons are teaching in regular classes across the nation, but none in Indiana.

Miss Garshwiler said that when she was a sophomore at St. Francis College in Fort Wayne, officials advised her to forget about teaching.

"I think they were looking out for my best interest — but I think I can do it," she said.

Miss Irvin has been flying since she took her first lesson in 1964 at 13. She soloed at age 16 and received her private certificate in 1967.

Miss Irvin received her private certificate in 1967, her instrument rating in 1968, a commercial certificate in 1971 and multi- engine rating in 1972. She also had aerobatic training in Phoenix Ariz. in August 1972.

While attending Illinois State University in Normal, Miss Irvin was the aerial traffic reporter for the Bloomington- Normal area from April to September 1973. She was also a fulltime flight instructor at the Bloomington Airport.

In the spring of 1973, she hired out as secretary- co-pilot of a charter freight and passenger airlines out Midway Airport. From September 1973 to June 1975, she was an instructor at Southwest City College in Chicago, teaching aviation- related courses.

Missouri meets Colorado as Big 8 race tightens

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas State, front-runners in the Big Eight Conference basketball race, appear on paper to be facing relatively easy tests this Saturday.

But basketball is not played on papar, as Kansas State proved Wednesday.

The Wildcats, 4-2 in the conference, entertain Oklahoma State, 2-4, after beating Missouri 85-81 Wednesday night to snap the Tigers' home winning streak at 23 and tighten the conference chase.

Missouri, 5-1, travels to Colorado, winner of one conference game and loser of 5. Nebraska, tied with the Tigers at 5-1, goes to Ames, Iowa, to do battle with Iowa State, 2-4 in the league and 2-17 over-all.

In the other league test, Kansas, the defending champion, 3-3, entertains Oklahoma, 2-4.

The Jayhawks could be in for a hard fight against Oklahoma. The Sooners have won their last two conference games, but may be without Kevin Jones. The freshman forward, whose scoring average of 9.8 and rebound average of 6.2 was leading the team, is nursing a sprained ankle.

"I think Coach (Ted) Owens and his staff have done an excellent job so far this year considering the injuries and problems they've had," said Oklahoma's first-year Coach David Bliss. "I know they are going to be especially tough in Allen Fieldhouse."

"We don't expect an easy time of it," he said. "Simply keeping your poise on the road has to be a key. We did it well against Nebraska, but we'll have to continue that kind of intensity to keep up successfully."

U.S. skaters have cheering section

INNSBRUCK (AP) — "Leah, Leah, work that corner — go, go, go!"

"Pick 'em up, Sheila, pick 'em up! That's a girl. Go, Sheila, go!"

These are the Northbrook Nightingales, although they're not all from Northbrook, Ill. And the shrill sounds they emit in the frigid Austrian air could never be associated with the sweet tones of a nightingale.

They're the rooting section for America's speed skating demons. They're the loudest, liveliest and most demonstrative group of supporters at any event of the XII Winter Olympics. They make more noise and generate more percussion than a hockey house full of Russians.

At one time they were known internationally as the Northbrook Skating Club — a group of speed-skating enthusiasts who turned the Winter Olympics into a private holiday.

"That's not the case any more," said Edward Arlowe of Champaign, Ill., president of the U.S. Speed Skating Association. "We have branched out. Now we have chapters all over the Midwest — St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Detroit, even as far away as California."

Until recent years speed skating has been one of the orphan sports of America's Olympic effort, overshadowed by the more aesthetic and more popular events of figure skating and Alpine skiing.

Battered Bulldogs meet Dexter

The Sikeston Bulldogs don't need a coach. They need a doctor.

"I feel I've spent more of my time in a hospital than at practice," said the Sikeston coach recently.

Buddy Spears was talking about the rash of accidents, injuries and sickness that have depleted his squad. With the tough Dexter Bearcats next on the schedule tonight, the 13-5 Dogs are in danger of losing two games in a row for the first time all year.

Dexter defeated Sikeston earlier in the season, but it has seemed like ages since that time. No fewer than eight of the original 14 Bulldogs have been hurt, removed from the squad or incapacitated in some way since then.

Dale Mowery was the first to leave back in the sesson's early portion. He moved from the Sikeston school district, costing Spears some bench strength. Then, Don Marks and Mike Warfield ran afoul of school policies. Marks has since been reinstated, but Warfield is still gone.

In the second round of the Bloomfield Christmas Tournament, Harold Dockins scored a career-high 33 points in a game against Malden. During the action, however, the Sikeston playmaker jammed his right wrist severely, limiting his use of that wrist. Swelling in the affected area has gone down and Dockins is able to shoot. For comfort's sake he has handled the ball with his left hand most of the year and has held his turnovers to a low level.

A tragic car accident cost Sikeston in mid-January when starting guard Ed Nunnelee was lost for the year. Since Nunnelee's mishap, the team has lacked a positive mental attitude as well as the 6-3 senior's athletic abilities. With Nunnelee missing, Sikeston's record is 3-3.

Six-foot-six center Paul Gilbow incurred a bruised thigh and various other cuts and bruises in a rough matchup last Tuesday with Jackson. Gilbow was hurting so bad that he had to leave the game with two minutes left. He is a probable starter against Dexter.

Alonzo Harris scored just eight points in the game, while suffering from the flu. He was able to practice Thursday so the odds are that he will start against the Bearcats, but how much efficiency he and Gilbow sacrifice will be a good point.

And the final bout with ill-health may prove to be the most damaging. Leading scorer Marc Eaves left school Thursday. His status for the Dexter game is very doubtful and his absence would cost Sikeston a 54 percent floor shooter, 92 percent free-throw shooter, a 17.6 points-per game scorer and a 10.2 rebounds per game.

"I'm sure that, if he can at all, Marc will be there," said Spears, but how much help he would be is a serious question.

Things have been tough for Sikeston this year, and coach Jim Hall and his Dexter Bearcats don't intend to let up. They own a 62-61 win over Sikeston in the first meeting and, although both squads are longshots for the conference title, it should be a good game.

"I want to beat this Dexter team," said coach Spears to his team. "We haven't beaten them in a long time. At least, not since I've been here."

In fact, not too many teams have beaten Dexter at all as of late. The Bearcats have won nine in a row since losing to Kennett in the finals of the Bloomfield Chrístmas Tournament and have taken 12 of their last 13 to build up an impressive 15-5 record.

Hard work and a tremendous attitude has helped the outgoing coach Hall to make a little talent go a long way at Dexter this year. "These boys are really a pleasure to coach," said Hall, who is resigning after this season. "They work just as hard during practice every day as they do in a game. That's the only reason they've improved like they have."

With hot-shooting guard Gred Miller for the outside game and the duo of Mark Guethle and Mike Williams inside, Dexter has plenty of offense to upend the Dogs for a second time. And, if taken too lightly, guard Randy Hiett and forward Richard Eaton can hit the bucket, too.

Coach Hall called Sikeston "a sleeping giant, waiting to break loose at any time." But the psychological advantage of having already beaten the Bulldogs once this season will be to the Bearcats' favor. So will the familiar floor of the Dexter gym, where they are undefeated so far this season. They lost only twice there last year, to Charleston and Kennett.

The Bulldogs will certainly have their backs to the wall when they take the court tonight. But if Spears doesn't run out of tape and bandages and if Marc Eaves can drag himself off his sick bed and at least three more major miracles occur -- including a better defensive effort -- revenge might come Sikeston's way.

Young wins 1st gold for U.S.

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Speed skating star Sheila Young of Detroit added a gold medal to her previous silver by winning the 500-meter speed skating race at the 12th Winter Olympics Games today.

Miss Young, who set a world record of 40.91 for the 500 meters at Davos, Switzerland last Saturday, broke the Olympic record today with a clocking of 42.76.

Cathy Priestner of Canada won the silver medal and Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union took the bronze. Miss Averina also won the bronze medal in the 1,500-meter race.

Miss Young, a 25-year-old powerhouse, won the silver medal Thursday in the 1,500 meters and moved into the gold medal class by winning her specialty today.

Miss Young's victory put the second dent in the Soviet Union's gold medal domination. Austria's Franz Klammer won the men's downhill Thursday for the other non-Russian gold medal.

Earlier today, the Russians won their third gold medal of these young Games when Nikolay Kruglov won the 20-kilometer biathlon race at nearby Seefeld in 1 hour 14 minutes 12.26 seconds.

The Russian skier-shooter had only two minutes in penalties added to his racing time for misses from the targets to give the Soviet Union its third gold medal of these Games.

Heikki Ikola of Finland won the biathlon silver medal in 1:15:54.10, also with a two-minute penalty. Aleksandr Elizarov of the Soviet Union was third in 1:16:05.57 for the bronze.

Margit Schumann, East Germany's reigning world champion, set a new track record on the 870-meter-long run and took over the lead today by winning the third of four heats in the women's singles luge.

The East German gold medal favorite slashed down the course in 42.28 seconds for an aggregate overall-run time of 2 minutes 7.96 seconds and jumped from fifth to first place.

Elisabeth Demleitner kept West Germany's hopes alive with a run of 42.38 seconds for a second-place overall time of 2:08.06. She also eclipsed her old record of 42.53 on this track.

Kathleen Homstad of Goleta, Calif., was the top American finisher, ending up 18th in the run at 44:85 for a three-run time of 2:16.00 that left her in 21st place.

In Thursday's results, Miss Young and Bill Koch confounded the experts, including themselves, while Klammer, the Austrian folk hero, confirmed the opinion of the experts and the faith of an entire country in outstanding performances at the 12th Winter Games.

Miss Young, who said she "wasn't really expecting a medal," struck a surprising silver in the 1,500-meter speed skating event Thursday and Koch of Guilford Vt., whose goal was finishing in the top 10, wound up No. 2 to win the silver medal in the 30-kilometers (18.6 mile) cross country ski event.

Klammer, needing a reckless performance in the bottom half of the treacherous downhill, the Games' glamour event, flashed to victory over defending Olympic champion Bernhard Russi of Switzerland by .67 seconds.

While Miss Young was winning a medal today today, the 20-year-old Koch was getting two day's rest before tackling the second of his four events, the 15 kilometer (15.5 miles) race, on Sunday.

The United States' ice hockey team attempts to succeed today where the best of the National Hockey League failed, when the Americans meet the overwhelmingly favored Russians, who logged a 5-2-1 record against the best the NHL had to offer last month.

In other Group A matches, Poland meets West Germany and Czechoslovakia, expected to finish second, faces Finland in the double-elimination tournament.

The only pressure on the two American silver medalists was self-imposed since they weren't favored and their country wasn't overly concerned with their fate. On the other hand, riding on the handsome Klammer's broad shoulders was the fierce skiing pride of the home nation and the winter sports industry it holds so dear.

8th graders even score with Charleston at E.P.

EAST PRAIRIE— Sikeston Junior High School's eighth grade teams made up for an embarrassing loss to Charleston last Saturday, exploding for 23 fourth period points to down the Jays 47-34 in the opening round of the East Prairie Invitational Eighth Grade Tournament Thursday. In the other opening round game, East Prairie bombed Oran 44-24.

Sikeston scored eight points in each of the first three periods and trailed by six going into the final period. Th Dogs took advantage of the half court trap defense which they switched to late in the third period to demolish the Bluejay squad, outscoring them 23-4 in the fourth quarter to make it a runaway.

"I gave the boys a little pep talk about pride," said coach Ford Morgan in explaining his team's fourth period turnaround. It was the second victory of his team in three tries against Charleston. Sikeston won a contest by 14 points at Charleston early in the season.

Sikeston takes on East Prairie at 8:00 Saturday night for the championship of the tournament, after Oran and Charleston play for third place in the consolation contest at 6:00.

Missouri meets Colorado as Big 8 race tightens

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas State, front-runners in the Big Eight Conference basketball race, appear on paper to be facing relatively easy tests this Saturday.

But basketball is not played on papar, as Kansas State proved Wednesday.

The Wildcats, 4-2 in the conference, entertain Oklahoma State, 2-4, after beating Missouri 85-81 Wednesday night to snap the Tigers' home winning streak at 23 and tighten the conference chase.

Missouri, 5-1, travels to Colorado, winner of one conference game and loser of 5. Nebraska, tied with the Tigers at 5-1, goes to Ames, Iowa, to do battle with Iowa State, 2-4 in the league and 2-17 over-all.

In the other league test, Kansas, the defending champion, 3-3, entertains Oklahoma, 2-4.

The Jayhawks could be in for a hard fight against Oklahoma. The Sooners have won their last two conference games, but may be without Kevin Jones. The freshman forward, whose scoring average of 9.8 and rebound average of 6.2 was leading the team, is nursing a sprained ankle.

"I think Coach (Ted) Owens and his staff have done an excellent job so far this year considering the injuries and problems they've had," said Oklahoma's first-year Coach David Bliss. "I know they are going to be especially tough in Allen Fieldhouse."

"We don't expect an easy time of it," he said. "Simply keeping your poise on the road has to be a key. We did it well against Nebraska, but we'll have to continue that kind of intensity to keep up successfully."

U.S. skaters have cheering section

INNSBRUCK (AP) — "Leah, Leah, work that corner — go, go, go!"

These are the Northbrook Nightingales, although they're not all from Northbrook, Ill. And the shrill sounds they emit in the frigid Austrian air could never be associated with the sweet tones of a nightingale.

They're the rooting section for America's speed skating demons. They're the loudest, liveliest and most demonstrative group of supporters at any event of the XII Winter Olympics. They make more noise and generate more percussion than a hockey house full of Russians.

At one time they were known internationally as the Northbrook Skating Club — a group of speed-skating enthusiasts who turned the Winter Olympics into a private holiday.

"That's not the case any more," said Edward Arlowe of Champaign, Ill., president of the U.S. Speed Skating Association. "We have branched out. Now we have chapters all over the Midwest — St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Detroit, even as far away as California."

In Semo Conference game:

Battered Bulldogs meet Dexter

The Sikeston Bulldogs don't need a coach. They need a doctor.

"I feel I've spent more of my time in a hospital than at practice," said the Sikeston coach recently.

Buddy Spears was talking about the rash of accidents, injuries and sickness that have depleted his squad. With the tough Dexter Bearcats next on the schedule tonight, the 13-5 Dogs are in danger of losing two games in a row for the first time all year.

Dexter defeated Sikeston earlier in the season, but it has seemed like ages since that time. No fewer than eight of the original 14 Bulldogs have been hurt, removed from the squad or incapacitated in some way since then.

Dale Mowery was the first to leave back in the sesson's early portion. He moved from the Sikeston school district, costing Spears some bench strength. Then, Don Marks and Mike Warfield ran afoul of school policies. Marks has since been reinstated, but Warfield is still gone.

In the second round of the Bloomfield Christmas Tournament, Harold Dockins scored a career-high 33 points in a game against Malden. During the action, however, the Sikeston playmaker jammed his right wrist severely, limiting his use of that wrist. Swelling in the affected area has gone down and Dockins is able to shoot. For comfort's sake he has handled the ball with his left hand most of the year and has held his turnovers to a low level.

A tragic car accident cost Sikeston in mid-January when starting guard Ed Nunnelee was lost for the year. Since Nunnelee's mishap, the team has lacked a positive mental attitude as well as the 6-3 senior's athletic abilities. With Nunnelee missing, Sikeston's record is 3-3.

Six-foot-six center Paul Gilbow incurred a bruised thigh and various other cuts and bruises in a rough matchup last Tuesday with Jackson. Gilbow was hurting so bad that he had to leave the game with two minutes left. He is a probable starter against Dexter.

Alonzo Harris scored just eight points in the game, while suffering from the flu. He was able to practice Thursday so the odds are that he will start against the Bearcats, but how much efficiency he and Gilbow sacrifice will be a good point.

And the final bout with ill-health may prove to be the most damaging. Leading scorer Marc Eaves left school Thursday. His status for the Dexter game is very doubtful and his absence would cost Sikeston a 54 percent floor shooter, 92 percent free-throw shooter, a 17.6 points-per game scorer and a 10.2 rebounds per game.

"I'm sure that, if he can at all, Marc will be there," said Spears, but how much help he would be is a serious question.

Things have been tough for Sikeston this year, and coach Jim Hall and his Dexter Bearcats don't intend to let up. They own a 62-61 win over Sikeston in the first meeting and, although both squads are longshots for the conference title, it should be a good game.

"I want to beat this Dexter team," said coach Spears to his team. "We haven't beaten them in a long time. At least, not since I've been here."

In fact, not too many teams have beaten Dexter at all as of late. The Bearcats have won nine in a row since losing to Kennett in the finals of the Bloomfield Christmas Tournament and have taken 12 of their last 13 to build up an impressive 15-5 record.

Hard work and a tremendous attitude has helped the outgoing coach Hall to make a little talent go a long way at Dexter this year. "These boys are really a pleasure to coach," said Hall, who is resigning after this season. "They work just as hard during practice every day as they do in a game. That's the only reason they've improved like they have."

With hot-shooting guard Gred Miller for the outside game and the duo of Mark Guethle and Mike Williams inside, Dexter has plenty of offense to upend the Dogs for a second time. And, if taken too lightly, guard Randy Hiett and forward Richard Eaton can hit the bucket, too.

Coach Hall called Sikeston "a sleeping giant, waiting to break loose at any time." But the psychological advantage of having already beaten the Bulldogs once this season will be to the Bearcats' favor. So will the familiar floor of the Dexter gym, where they are undefeated so far this season. They lost only twice there last year, to Charleston and Kennett.

The Bulldogs will certainly have their backs to the wall when they take the court tonight. But if Spears doesn't run out of tape and bandages and if Marc Eaves can drag himself off his sick bed and at least three more major miracles occur -- including a better defensive effort -- revenge might come Sikeston's way.

Allin leads Hope golf; veterans challenging

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Up until now," Billy Casper said, "it looked like a pretty good day for the old guys."

Casper made the observation when Buddy Allin came ambling in with a 68 and the second-round lead in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic with a seven-under-par 135 total.

Palmer, who scored his last American victory in this tournament three long years ago, one-putted 10 times on his way to an eight-under-par 64, his best round in years.

And Casper played his back nine in 29 strokes, the best on the tour this season, on the way to a 65.

'It's kind of interesting," said Casper. "I don't ever remember shooting a 29 before. And I had to wait until my 21st year to do it."

"I felt like I was going to make it every time I got the putter in my hand," said the obviously-delighted Palmer, who used only 26 strokes on the greens. "I can't remember the last time I had a putting round like that."

Casper's seven-under-par effort left him in second place, two shots back of the pace-setting Allin, with three rounds to go in this unique five-day, four-course, 90-hole tournament that Palmer has won five times.

And Arnold's 64 — like Casper, shot at Eldorado — put him in a tie for third at 138, three strokes back.

He shared the position with Dwight Nevil and Bob Murphy. Nevil, once a Dallas fireman, had a 67 in the cloudy, chilly, occasionally drizzly weather. Murphy had a 68.

Jack Nicklaus and big George Cadle were at 139. Nicklaus shot a 70 and Cadle had a 69. Defending champion Johnny Miller had a 69 and was tied at 140 with Jim Colbert and three others. Colbert, who shared the first-round lead with Allin, slipped back with a 73.

Allin, Nevil and Murphy played at Bermuda Dunes. The rest of the leaders were at Eldordo.

Lee Trevino, Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Ben Crenshaw, winner of the last two tour titles, are not competing.

Steelers' Blount honored

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cornerback Mel Blount of the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers has been named the American Football Conference defensive player of the year by Kansas City's 101 Committee.

Blount will receive the award Feb. 20 at the 101 dinner here.

A third round draft choice of the Steelers in 1970, Blount led the National Football League in 1975 with 11 interceptions, running his career total to 23.

The 101 honorees are selected by a special voting committee of the 101 national sportswriters and broadcasters who cover the NFL.

O.J. Simpson, Buffalo running back, was earlier named as the 101's offensive player of the year.

Cowboys take pride in hats

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.— "A cowboy is normally a peaceful man, but one sure way of making him mad is to touch or take his hat. If you deform a cowboy's hat, he'll likely try to deform you," said cowboy Jim Sayre, of Deadwood, S.D.

The feeling a cowboy has for his hat has developed out of more than a century of tradition of a hat being a part of a cowboy's image, and equipment or trade.

"I feel naked without my hat," said Sayre, who was in Oklahoma City recently to attend the National Finals Rodeo where top rodeo cowboys competed for national championship honors and a share of the $40,000 in championship payoffs from the Winston Rodeo Awards program.

"A hat is the badge of a cowboy," said the rodeo artist who was formerly a Brahma bull rider.

"A typical cowboy will spend his last dime on a good hat, because a hat is important for his ego and helps him look the part. Anyone who wears a cowboy hat is saying he wants to be identified with this way of life," Sayre said.

You can step on his blue suede boots, but don't touch his hat. Even when a cowboy comes from "Down Under" like Jim Dix, a bareback bronc rider from North Collie, Australia, he wears his cowboy hat as a symbol of a way of life.

For the true cowboy, a hat symbolizes and expresses the spirit of the old West. Today, the hat remains the strongest link with the past since its style is truly American in origin.

"The better the hat a cowboy wears the more people are impressed. Everyone looks at your hat before they look at your shoes, because they are looking at your face when they talk to you," said Johnny Smith of Denton, Tex.

"A cowboy may not always be able to wear the best pair of jeans or shirt, but he will always have a good hat," Smith added.

When asked why he wore a hat, Buck Brumley, of Albuquerque, N.M., said, "I wear one out of habit. I put my hat on unconsciously."

Jim Robison, a lawyer from Sikeston, Mo., who identified himself as a "weekend cowboy," said he started wearing a hat "when I got up enough nerve to defend it. Wearing a hat in certain parts of the country is sometimes looked upon as being silly, and a cowboy must be ready to defend his hat should someone laugh."

A favorite hat has also been known to bring good luck. Causey Tibbs, the famous saddle bronc rider, always spit in his hat before each event to help insure good luck.

And people have also been known to be married wearing their hats, and to take their hats with them when they are buried.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Smith, former Southern Methodist University football coach, has joined the Vanderbilt coaching staff as offensive backfield coach, Coach Fred Pancoast said Thursday.

Smith's 4-7 record at SMU last fall, when he left his post in the wake of an NCAA investigation, was his first losing season on any level of football as a head coach. Smith, 42, replaces Lynn Hughes, who resigned to enter private business in Georgia.

By BILL HARRISON

Nineteen games are on tap in southeast Missouri Friday night and one game is scheduled for Saturday night as the basketball season continues into its final leg before the big regional tournaments tip off February 23 for class 2A and 3A schools.

These class schools have only two more weeks of preparations for the big "Show". 1A and 4A get to relax another week before their regionals begin March 1.

Some big test will take place Friday night as Charleston visits Hayti for a big confrontation. The Bluejays were The Daily Standard's top team before losing a close game to Kennett last week. Hayti has been playing some good ball this season and no doubt is anxious to try coach Mitch Haskin's Birds to see if the Indians can cope with the likes of Lilbourn as the Panthers are in the same regional with Hayti at Hayti. Charleston has defeated the Panthers twice this season but by only one point the last time out. Charleston hasn't shown any inclination to run the ball so Hayti has the ability to stay in the game.

The Sikeston Bulldogs visit the Dexter Bearcats for an important game not only in the SEMO conference race but for morale purposes. Sikeston lost to Dexter in the Christmas tournament at Bloomfield but thought they were the better team. Since then, the Bulldogs have had some downs and seems to have hit the skids after losing to the Jackson Indians Tuesday night. Dexter seems to have hit their stride after the Christmas tournament, winning the Stoddard county tournament. After the Bearcats battle Sikeston coach Jim Hall's team travels to Jackson Saturday night for a SEMO conference game.

An important 1A matchup will pit Puxico at Advance. The Hornets are trying to put their team together in time for the regional tournament's starting at Advance March 1. Puxico and Advance are old rivals and neither team desires to lose this one.

The Scott Central Braves complete their season with the Kelly Hawks and vise versa. For the two prior seasons it has been Kelly thumping the Braves but so far this season the Braves have won three games with the final coming up.

Randy Hagar was a little puny in the finals of the Scott-Mississippi tournament and coach Nick Lanpher believed this had a bearing on the outcome so he is glad to get another chance at Ronnie Cookson's "Scoring Machine". The Braves are number two in both the state and Daily Standard poll.

Woodland is at Notre Dame for an important 2A class game. Both teams are entered in the 2A regional at Bloomfield and are going to get a chance to test the other's strength.

Matthews visits Richland for another important 1A clash. The two teams are in the same regional starting at Richland and ending at Gideon in March.

Both the Rebels and the Pirates have been playing good ball in their respective classes.

Panel's picks

Five of tonight's nineteen high school basketball games have failed to get a unanimous prediction from The Daily Standard sports staff as Billy Harrison, Dale Forbis and Charlie Francis once again try their collective hands at guessing the outcomes.

Dale was the odd man on three of the games, choosing Sikeston over Dexter, Twin Rivers over Caruthersville and Woodland over Notre Dame. Mr. Basketball picks Malden to beat North Pemiscot, while Charlie foresees South Pemiscot winning over Holcomb.

Allin leads Hope golf; veterans challenging

Casper made the observation when Buddy Allin came ambling in with a 68 and the second-round lead in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic with a seven-under-par 135 total.

Palmer, who scored his last American victory in this tournament three long years ago, one-putted 10 times on his way to an eight-under-par 64, his best round in years.

And Casper played his back nine in 29 strokes, the best on the tour this season, on the way to a 65.

'It's kind of interesting," said Casper. "I don't ever remember shooting a 29 before. And I had to wait until my 21st year to do it."

"I felt like I was going to make it every time I got the putter in my hand," said the obviously-delighted Palmer, who used only 26 strokes on the greens. "I can't remember the last time I had a putting round like that."

Casper's seven-under-par effort left him in second place, two shots back of the pace-setting Allin, with three rounds to go in this unique five-day, four-course, 90-hole tournament that Palmer has won five times.

And Arnold's 64 — like Casper, shot at Eldorado — put him in a tie for third at 138, three strokes back.

He shared the position with Dwight Nevil and Bob Murphy. Nevil, once a Dallas fireman, had a 67 in the cloudy, chilly, occasionally drizzly weather. Murphy had a 68.

Jack Nicklaus and big George Cadle were at 139. Nicklaus shot a 70 and Cadle had a 65. Defending champion Johnny Miller had a 69 and was tied at 140 with Jim Colbert and three others. Colbert, who shared the first-round lead with Allin, slipped back with a 73.

Calvary to host training course

Calvary Assembly Church, 127 Trotter St., will conduct its annual workers training course at 7 o'clock each evening next Monday through Friday, according to the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor.

The subject to be dealt with is "Preparing To Teach God's Word," and the course is not just for teachers but is for anyone who has a desire to better understand the Bible. The sessions also are open to people from other churches, and a nursery will be provided for children under four years old.

Instructors for the five-night Bible course are the Rev. and Mrs. Roy Sprague of Shawnee, Okla. Two 45-minute sessions will be conducted each night, with each instructor teaching a session each evening, with a brief recess between.

The Rev. Mr. McDonough said that, through this and other efforts, the church will continue to strive toward achieving its goal of "300 plus" average attendance for 1976. The Sunday School attendance goal for Sunday is 325.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague will be introduced during the 9:30 a.m. Sunday School period and will minister in both the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. McDonough said a special red, white and blue Bicentennial certificate will be awarded to each person who attends all five Sundays in February. The potential number of certificates, to be presented on March 7, stands now at 320. Due to the unusual combination of five Sundays in February and the Bicentennial anniversary, the certificates will become collectors items (February will not have five Sundays again until 2004 and America will never have another Bicentennial).

The Rev. Roy Sprague

Also, a special installation exercise for all officers of Calvary church and its various departments will be included as part of the activities planned for the 7 o'clock service Sunday night.

Weekend revival planned

weekend revival services will be conducted tonight, Saturday night and Sunday at the Pentecostal Holiness Church, 328 W. North St., which also will host a gospel singing program Sunday afternoon.

The speakers for the revival services will be the Rev. and Mrs. A.E. Stanley of St. Louis, who both are preachers.

The revival services will begin at 7 o'clock tonight and Saturday night and at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday. Sunday School begins at 10 a.m., and the Rev. Freeman Parker is pastor.

The singing program at 2 p.m. Sunday will feature the Gant Singers of Samburg, Tenn.

Tennessee youths to sing twice

Van Chaney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Chaney, 834 Cambridge Drive, and former member of the Lordsmen Quartet of Poplar Bluff, will bring the youth choir from First Baptist Church of Medina, Tenn., to Southeast Missouri this weekend for performances in two Sikeston area churches.

Chaney is minister of music and youth at the Medina church, and will direct the youth choir in its presentation of the Bicentennial musical, "I Love America", by John W. Petersen.

The first performance will be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday in Miner Baptist Church, located on Route H at the Highway 62 East intersection.

The musical will be repeated at 6 p.m. Sunday in First Baptist Church, 1101 N. Main St.

Prior to the Sunday night performance, Chaney and the choir will attend Sunday School and the morning worship service at First Baptist Church, where Chaney was a former organist and pianist. He will present special music during the worship service.

Quartet to sing at Morehouse

The Songsmen Quartet of Paragould, Ark., will present a gospel singing concert Saturday night at the Morehouse Church of the Nazarene. The program will begin at 7:45 p.m.

The Rev. Dr. Edris is "seeking during the year to get into as many smaller churches as possible," the Rev. William McCutchen Jr., Westminster minister, said.

All Presbyterian churches in the area will receive invitations to visit with the Rev. Dr. Edris, the Rev. Mr. McCutchen said. The moderator is scheduled tyo meet with pastors and wives, then church elders and wives prior to the general meeting at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 28.

Church historian says boom in 'new religions' is over

NEW YORK (AP) — The profusion of "new religions" that swept the American scene in the past 10 years is now receding, says a noted church historian in sizing up trends in faith foreseen for the rest of the 1970's.

He predicts a "settled down" period of stability for the mainline Christian and Jewish bodies.

But "the boom is over" for the various novel cults that have proliferated mainly among the young, says the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Marty, a professor at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

He says all of them aren't likely to disappear in the immediate future, but some already have declined, leaving only traces. He said the survivors have "hardened," and, in general, no longer arouse the fascination they once did.

Although they had "claimed to be anti-institutional alternatives to the organized religion they condemned," he says, "they are now the most organized forms of organized religion around. That is, they rely on extreme discipline."

He says the main sign that their heydey is done is that "whereas the claims of these hit-and-run gurus used to be entertained seriously," they now are "treated either as mildly amusing, only mildly alarming and sometimes as being 'on the take.'"

Dr. Marty, a Lutheran, writing in Context, a semimonthly analysis of trends issued in Chicago by the Claretian Fathers, a Catholic order, says "nonhardened" marginal groups have survived by "secularizing themselves."

As an example, he cites "transcendantal meditation," a technique which now disavows any religious links, although Dr. Marty says its religious roots were obvious when it first was imported to this country in the late 1960s.

He says other "exotic" religious styles, such as neo-Pentecostalism, also are slipping and that "the hardline Jesus movement has long ago 'had it.'"

Of the various groups, he says, "their glamor is gone. The number of affluent young people and bored suburbanites on which they drew is decreasing. Hard times have been here long enough to cut down on the luxury of people free to drift."

As for the main bodies of organized religion, he says they are entering "a settled-down period" in which "expectations seem lower and a more realistic generation has learned to be surprised by small gains and graces."

A stabilizing trend is evident after several years of shrinking membership, he said.

Rival leaders in Angola have strong religious background

NEW YORK (AP) — All three leaders of the three factions fighting for governing power in Angola have strong religious backgrounds and continuing ties to Christianity.

Their parallel upbringing and somewhat similar socialistic goals are among the oddly concordant — yet confusing — aspects of the Angola war cited by veteran mission workers familiar with the situation there.

It resulted in church humanitarian aid going to all three independence groups until stopped last year when war among them broke out.

"All of the three rival leaders grew up in very devoted Christian families and are very knowledgeable about the Christian faith," says the Rev. Lawrence Henderson, a mission worker in Angola for 22 years.

Angola itself is about 60 per cent Christian, the rest mostly followers of traditional African religions. Of its six million people, about three million are Roman Catholics, about one million Protestants.

The three opposing leaders, who for more than a decade were jointly involved in the struggle against Portugal until independence was granted last summer, are all Protestants, educated in Protestant mission schools.

"Protestants over the years have put more effort into educational work than Catholics, so there is more leadership influence in Protestantism," says the Rev. Mr. Henderson, now a missions executive of the United Church of Christ.

Catholicism also had ties with the Portuguese colonial regime and was officially favored before independence.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson, in an interview, and other sources provided this background about the three independence leaders:

Holden Roberto, 53, head of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola — FNLA — backed by Zaire, South Africa, China and the United States, is a Baptist, a regular church participant and once taught in a Baptist school.

The grandson of an Angolan Baptist minister and reared in a devout Baptist family, he was baptized in youth, and attended schools run by British Baptists, the oldest Protestant mission group in Angol, there in 1878.

Roberto for a time served as an instructor in a Baptist school in Salvador, Angola, and still finds time between military engagements for frequent participation in worship services.

Agostinho Neto 52, head of the Popular Movement for Liberation of Angola — MPLA — backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba, is a Methodist son of a Methodist minister, a product of Methodist mission schools.

He studied medicine on a Methodist scholarship in Portugal, and later served as secretary to Angola's Methodist bishop. The present Angolan Methodist bishop, Emilio de Carvalho, reportedly supports him firmly.

However, the Rev. Mr. Henderson said while Neto expresses appreciation for the church's "contributions in values and support for the people," his attitude toward the church "seems mainly sentimental, a carry-over from youth, rather than active participation." Also, his organization's literature is openly Marxist, disparaging religion.

Jonas M. Savimbi, 41, head of the National Union for Total Independence of Angola — UNITA — backed by South Africa, China and the United States, is a member of the United Church of Christ, trained in mission schools, still an active churchman.

On church scholarships, he studied medicine in Lisbon and earned a doctorate in political science in Lausanne, Switzerland. His father, a railway worker and church lay leader with an evangelical zeal, helped found scores of churches and schools in Angola.

Savimbi "has been very close to church work," said the Rev. Mr. Henderson, adding: "All three men had a very complete immersion in the Christian community, because of its intensive, inclusive nature there, involving whole families and the whole of life — schools, health, agriculture.

"But church work will have to change fundamentally, no matter who comes out on top." Noting that the social aims of all three groups anticipate taking over schools and health facilities, he added: "Churches will have to readjust drastically."

Laymen's League takes over Lutheran TV reins

ST. LOUIS— The International Lutheran Laymen's League began a new stage in its ministry through the mass media as it became the operating agency of Lutheran Television on Feb. 1.

Executive Director Cloyd R. "Bud" Croft Jr. said the move of Lutheran Television from the headquarters office of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod here to the league's offices, ends a 10 year co-sponsorship of the ministry with the LCMS.

The co-sponsorship began in 1967 when, at the request of the synod, the league made a grant of $86,000 to meet a financial crisis which could have terminated the "This Is the Life" dramatic series produced by Lutheran Television. The series, which will begin its 25th year next fall, is carried by more than 400 television stations in the United States and Canada.

Dr. Martin J. Neeb Jr., executive secretary of Lutheran Television since 1967, now becomes manager of Lutheran Television under the league's organization. Working with Dr. Neeb are the Rev. Ardon D. Albrecht, director of programming, and J. Michael Vincent, director of promotion and distribution.

The International Lutheran Laymen's League is an auxiliary organization of the LCMS. It also sponsors The Lutheran Hour, a worldwide radio broadcast, which is carried each week by more than 1,100 stations in the United States and Canada.

The League's headquarters are in St. Louis, and the organization maintains 19 Lutheran Hour offices around the world.

No. 225. The Book of Proverbs: Wisdom

The Book of Proverbs is one of the most popular and most characteristic collections of what scholars refer to as Wisdom Literature. It is composed of collections of wise sayings as well as moral and religious precepts. The subject matter of this enduring and fascinating collection is adequately summarized in Proverbs 1:1-6 as instruction in wise dealing, righteousness, justice, and equity.

Chapters one through nine comprise a prologue, primarily stressing the importance and value of wisdom. Unlike the following chapters, each idea presented is discussed rather carefully in a brief, poetic essay. We are warned specifically against crimes of violence (1:10-19); rashly pledging oneself to another (6:1-5); sloth (6:6-11); duplicity (6:12-15); and, above all, licentiousness (2:16-19; 5:3-20; 6:23-35; 7:4-27; and 9:13-18).

But to those who resist these temptations, wisdom promises a life of happiness, wealth, and honor. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding....Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honour. ...She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her: and happy is everyone that retaineth her." (Proverbs 3:13-18)

Calvary to host training course

Calvary Assembly Church, 127 Trotter St., will conduct its annual workers training course at 7 o'clock each evening next Monday through Friday, according to the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor.

The subject to be dealt with is "Preparing To Teach God's Word," and the course is not just for teachers but is for anyone who has a desire to better understand the Bible. The sessions also are open to people from other churches, and a nursery will be provided for children under four years old.

Instructors for the five-night Bible course are the Rev. and Mrs. Roy Sprague of Shawnee, Okla. Two 45-minute sessions will be conducted each night, with each instructor teaching a session each evening, with a brief recess between.

The Rev. Mr. McDonough said that, through this and other efforts, the church will continue to strive toward achieving its goal of "300 plus" average attendance for 1976. The Sunday School attendance goal for Sunday is 325.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague will be introduced during the 9:30 a.m. Sunday School period and will minister in both the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. McDonough said a special red, white and blue Bicentennial certificate will be awarded to each person who attends all five Sundays in February. The potential number of certificates, to be presented on March 7, stands now at 320. Due to the unusual combination of five Sundays in February and the Bicentennial anniversary, the certificates will become collectors items (February will not have five Sundays again until 2004 and America will never have another Bicentennial).

The Rev. Roy Sprague

Also, a special installation exercise for all officers of Calvary church and its various departments will be included as part of the activities planned for the 7 o'clock service Sunday night.

Weekend revival planned

Weekend revival services will be conducted tonight, Saturday night and Sunday at the Pentecostal Holiness Church, 328 W. North St., which also will host a gospel singing program Sunday afternoon.

The speakers for the revival services will be the Rev. and Mrs. A.E. Stanley of St. Louis, who both are preachers.

The revival services will begin at 7 o'clock tonight and Saturday night and at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday. Sunday School begins at 10 a.m., and the Rev. Freeman Parker is pastor.

The singing program at 2 p.m. Sunday will feature the Gant Singers of Samburg, Tenn.

Tennessee youths to sing twice

Chaney is minister of music and youth at the Medina church, and will direct the youth choir in its presentation of the Bicentennial musical, "I Love America", by John W. Petersen.

The first performance will be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday in Miner Baptist Church, located on Route H at the Highway 62 East intersection.

The musical will be repeated at 6 p.m. Sunday in First Baptist Church, 1101 N. Main St.

Prior to the Sunday night performance, Chaney and the choir will attend Sunday School and the morning worship service at First Baptist Church, where Chaney was a former organist and pianist. He will present special music during the worship service.

Church historian says boom in 'new religions' is over

NEW YORK (AP) — The profusion of "new religions" that swept the American scene in the past 10 years is now receding, says a noted church historian in sizing up trends in faith foreseen for the rest of the 1970's.

He predicts a "settled down" period of stability for the mainline Christian and Jewish bodies.

But "the boom is over" for the various novel cults that have proliferated mainly among the young, says the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Marty, a professor at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

He says all of them aren't likely to disappear in the immediate future, but some already have declined, leaving only traces. He said the survivors have "hardened," and, in general, no longer arouse the fascination they once did.

Although they had "claimed to be anti-institutional alternatives to the organized religion they condemned," he says, "they are now the most organized forms of organized religion around. That is, they rely on extreme discipline."

He says the main sign that their heydey is done is that "whereas the claims of these hit-and-run gurus used to be entertained seriously," they now are "treated either as mildly amusing, only mildly alarming and sometimes as being 'on the take.'"

Dr. Marty, a Lutheran, writing in Context, a semimonthly analysis of trends issued in Chicago by the Claretian Fathers, a Catholic order, says "nonhardened" marginal groups have survived by "secularizing themselves."

As an example, he cites "transcendantal meditation," a technique which now disavows any religious links, although Dr. Marty says its religious roots were obvious when it first was imported to this country in the late 1960s.

He says other "exotic" religious styles, such as neo-Pentecostalism, also are slipping and that "the hardline Jesus movement has long ago 'had it.'"

Of the various groups, he says, "their glamor is gone. The number of affluent young people and bored suburbanites on which they drew is decreasing. Hard times have been here long enough to cut down on the luxury of people free to drift."

As for the main bodies of organized religion, he says they are entering "a settled-down period" in which "expectations seem lower and a more realistic generation has learned to be surprised by small gains and graces."

A stabilizing trend is evident after several years of shrinking membership, he said.

Rival leaders in Angola have strong religious background

NEW YORK (AP) — All three leaders of the three factions fighting for governing power in Angola have strong religious backgrounds and continuing ties to Christianity.

Their parallel upbringing and somewhat similar socialistic goals are among the oddly concordant — yet confusing — aspects of the Angola war cited by veteran mission workers familiar with the situation there.

It resulted in church humanitarian aid going to all three independence groups until stopped last year when war among them broke out.

"All of the three rival leaders grew up in very devoted Christian families and are very knowledgeable about the Christian faith," says the Rev. Lawrence Henderson, a mission worker in Angola for 22 years.

Angola itself is about 60 per cent Christian, the rest mostly followers of traditional African religions. Of its six million people, about three million are Roman Catholics, about one million Protestants.

The three opposing leaders, who for more than a decade were jointly involved in the struggle against Portugal until independence was granted last summer, are all Protestants, educated in Protestant mission schools.

"Protestants over the years have put more effort into educational work than Catholics, so there is more leadership influence in Protestantism," says the Rev. Mr. Henderson, now a missions executive of the United Church of Christ.

Catholicism also had ties with the Portuguese colonial regime and was officially favored before independence.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson, in an interview, and other sources provided this background about the three independence leaders:

Holden Roberto, 53, head of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola — FNLA — backed by Zaire, South Africa, China and the United States, is a Baptist, a regular church participant and once taught in a Baptist school.

The grandson of an Angolan Baptist minister and reared in a devout Baptist family, he was baptized in youth, and attended schools run by British Baptists, the oldest Protestant mission group in Angol, there in 1878.

Roberto for a time served as an instructor in a Baptist school in Salvador, Angola, and still finds time between military engagements for frequent participation in worship services.

Agostinho Neto 52, head of the Popular Movement for Liberation of Angola — MPLA — backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba, is a Methodist son of a Methodist minister, a product of Methodist mission schools.

He studied medicine on a Methodist scholarship in Portugal, and later served as secretary to Angola's Methodist bishop. The present Angolan Methodist bishop, Emilio de Carvalho, reportedly supports him firmly.

However, the Rev. Mr. Henderson said while Neto expresses appreciation for the church's "contributions in values and support for the people," his attitude toward the church 'seems mainly sentimental, a carry-over from youth, rather than active participation." Also, his organization's literature is openly Marxist, disparaging religion.

Jonas M. Savimbi, 41, head of the National Union for Total Independence of Angola — UNITA — backed by South Africa, China and the United States, is a member of the United Church of Christ, trained in mission schools, still an active churchman.

On church scholarships, he studied medicine in Lisbon and earned a doctorate in political science in Lausanne, Switzerland. His father, a railway worker and church lay leader with an evangelical zeal, helped found scores of churches and schools in Angola.

Savimbi "has been very close to church work," said the Rev. Mr. Henderson, adding: "All three men had a very complete immersion in the Christian community, because of its intensive, inclusive nature there, involving whole families and the whole of life — schools, health, agriculture.

"But church work will have to change fundamentally, no matter who comes out on top." Noting that the social aims of all three groups anticipate taking over schools and health facilities, he added: "Churches will have to readjust drastically."

Church bells to ring July 4

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— Church bells throughout Missouri will ring on July 4 under a proposal approved by the state's American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

At its meeting last week, the commission approved a resolution saying that Missouri communities are urged to ring their church bells on July 4, 1976 "in tribute to the passage of the Declaration of Independence."

All-day service slated Sunday

RISCO—The Risco Assembly of God Church will have an all-day service Sunday, including a covered-dish luncheon at the noon hour.

The evangelist will be Bill Reese, and the Redemptionaires of Puxico will sing, according to the Rev. Herschell Kindrick, pastor.

Laymen's League takes over Lutheran TV reins

ST. LOUIS— The International Lutheran Laymen's League began a new stage in its ministry through the mass media as it became the operating agency of Lutheran Television on Feb. 1.

Executive Director Cloyd R. "Bud" Croft Jr. said the move of Lutheran Television from the headquarters office of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod here to the league's offices, ends a 10 year co-sponsorship of the ministry with the LCMS.

The co-sponsorship began in 1967 when, at the request of the synod, the league made a grant of $86,000 to meet a financial crisis which could have terminated the "This Is the Life" dramatic series produced by Lutheran Television. The series, which will begin its 25th year next fall, is carried by more than 400 television stations in the United States and Canada.

"THE HOUR OF DECISION"

In 1975, They Were The First

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, 48, was elected the first woman leader of Britain's Conservative Party. If the Tories win the next general election in 1979, she would automatically become the first British woman prime minister.

The general assembly of the World Council of Churches for the first time elected a woman, in fact two women, to the council's six-member presidium.

They are Annie Baeta Jiagge, an Appeals Court justice of Ghana, a Presbyterian, and Dr. Cynthia Wedel, a psychologist of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian and former president of the National Council of Churches.

The first woman conquered Mt. Everest. She is Junko Tabei, 35, of Saitama Prefecture, Japan.

The first female ambassador to the Vatican, breaking a 900-year unwritten rule, was accepted by the Pope. She is Bernadette Olowo, 27, from Uganda.

Mary Lou Williams at the piano led the jazz mass she had composed, in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. It was the first jazz performance ever given in the cathedral.

Africa got its first woman premier, Elizabeth Domitien of the Central African Republic. There are two others in the world, in India and Sri Lanka.

New York got a women's bank, billed as "the first bank in the U.S. organized primarily by women."

Two women were valedictorian and salutatorian of the graduating class of Princeton's class of 1975, the first time a woman has earned either honor in the school's history.

The first woman to head the equivalent of a town council in Algeria is Rabia Ferhat, 33, a school teacher with four children, in Hamadia. In Algeria, it is in country districts where women have made the most advances in political participation.

Karen Stead, 11, from Morrisville, Pa., is the first female to win the Soap Box Derby. She won against 98 other entrants.

Cyndi Meserve, 18, of Livermore Falls, Maine, became the first woman to play on a National Collegiate Athletic Assn. men's varsity basketball team, at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, where she went to study fashion design.

Leisure suits coming of age

By Chalres Hix

It's all part of men's clothing makers doing their spring cleaning early this year, tidying up leisure suits, shirt and pant coordinates, even casual jackets. As a result, regionalism is also being swept away with the gimmicks. Even the California Look no longer looks like California.

What's happened is that the casual and splashy style long associated with leisure suits — and especially with the California Look — will not be nearly as prevalent this spring, even in California.

West Coast manufacturers are abandoning their elaborately casual image for clothing that is neater, less detailed, more tailored. Rather than being a negative turnabout from leisure suits, however, the phenomenon is in their favor.

"Leisure suits are so much a way of life," says Chip Tolbert, fashion director, Men's Fashion Association of America, "that companies are seeking to make them more versatile."

That versatility is taking the form of subtracting, not adding, so-called leisure details like complicated belting, bric-a-brac and superfluous stitchery. Non-West Coast manufacturers are also in the same mood, simplifying their leisure suit lines. As a result, for perhaps the first time in decades a truly mid-American style is evolving which can travel coast to coast without seeming regionally eccentric at any stop.

The success or failure of this attempt hinges on some leisure suit styles gaining acceptance as office wear. By design, a number of classed up models for spring will look as fashion-right with a shirt and tie as with an open-collared shirt and scarf.

Of course, only the more tailored leisure suits fit this category. They are usually fully-lined, with a longer slimming silhouette to the jacket. Wearing matching trousers and a tie will be essential for business acceptance.

More questionable as components in a weekday wardrobe are coordinated separates — shirt-jackets, shirts and trousers — even though the emphasis here this spring is also on a toned down look.

In most instances the tops are also longer than in recent seasons. Tailoring is in a more classic mood. For example, a new shirt-jacket from Pen West has a stitched-down back belt reminiscent of a Norfolk jacket, a feature more traditionally found in suit jackets. Another tailoring touch is the pleated back. Nonetheless, even when worn with classic straight-legged pants and a neat geometric shirt (color coordinated with the jacket by the manufacturer), the look is probably still too easygoing for business hours. Yet the outfit smacks of no regionalism.

Outfits with straightforward sporty flair are more tidy this spring. Take the tie-dyed fabrics popular for several seasons. They're still around but less brightly blotched. Shirt Designs, a California company, has introduced an unconstructed shirt-style leisure outfit in tie-dyed cotton painwale corduroy. It is subtly, not brashly, washed out. The longer shirt is neatly tapered. The straight, deep yoke also creates pocket flaps in a crisp line. Side vented, the shirt-jacket can be worn alone or with another shirt beneath.

While there can be no mistaking leather outerwear as business attire, leather jackets are similarly being treated with understatement this spring. The lightweight, soft styles disprove the notion that leather is only for fall and winter. Suedes are falling into disfavor this season, with smooth, light toned glace finishes receiving the nod. Surprisingly, leather jackets are a specialty of California, although wearing them is no more western than eastern, especially since the new styles are cleanly handsome, with graceful yoke treatments and subtle detailing, with nothing whatsoever about the cowboy or stuntman about them.

In fact, playing roles or stunts with menswear won't be done this spring at all. Except for novelty clothing — jogging outfits, tennis gear, whimsical weekend nifties — men's wearables are being taken much more seriously. Versatility — whether it's a leisure suit doing double-duty as both office attire and casual wear, or shirt-jacketed outfits worn in or out of slacks, with or without another shirt beneath — is the real key. To be more versatile, men's clothing will become more simple this spring. By trying to find a common ground in their styles, menswear manufacturers are eliminating regional stereotypes in how men dress.

LEATHER finds a place in menswear spring lines, especially in hip-length jackets with fine, understated details. Suedes bow to soft, light glace leathers as in this non-cowboy look by Woodstock.

CALIFORNIA casual look is reinterpreted for double-duty versatility. It even goes to the office. Here Stuart Nelson features dressier detailing to look right with sport shirt and scarf or shirt and tie.

When Glamor Goes to your Head

In 1975, They Were The First

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, 48, was elected the first woman leader of Britain's Conservative Party. If the Tories win the next general election in 1979, she would automatically become the first British woman prime minister.

The general assembly of the World Council of Churches for the first time elected a woman, in fact two women, to the council's six-member presidium.

They are Annie Baeta Jiagge, an Appeals Court justice of Ghana, a Presbyterian, and Dr. Cynthia Wedel, a psychologist of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian and former president of the National Council of Churches.

The first woman conquered Mt. Everest. She is Junko Tabei, 35, of Saitama Prefecture, Japan.

The first female ambassador to the Vatican, breaking a 900-year unwritten rule, was accepted by the Pope. She is Bernadette Olowo, 27, from Uganda.

Mary Lou Williams at the piano led the jazz mass she had composed, in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. It was the first jazz performance ever given in the cathedral.

Africa got its first woman premier, Elizabeth Domitien of the Central African Republic. There are two others in the world, in India and Sri Lanka.

New York got a women's bank, billed as "the first bank in the U.S. organized primarily by women."

Two women were valedictorian and salutatorian of the graduating class of Princeton's class of 1975, the first time a woman has earned either honor in the school's history.

The first woman to head the equivalent of a town council in Algeria is Rabia Ferhat, 33, a school teacher with four children, in Hamadia. In Algeria, it is in country districts where women have made the most advances in political participation.

Karen Stead, 11, from Morrisville, Pa., is the first female to win the Soap Box Derby. She won against 98 other entrants.

Cyndi Meserve, 18, of Livermore Falls, Maine, became the first woman to play on a National Collegiate Athletic Assn. men's varsity basketball team, at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, where she went to study fashion design.

Leisure suits coming of age

By Chalres Hix

It's all part of men's clothing makers doing their spring cleaning early this year, tidying up leisure suits, shirt and pant coordinates, even casual jackets. As a result, regionalism is also being swept away with the gimmicks. Even the California Look no longer looks like California.

What's happened is that the casual and splashy style long associated with leisure suits — and especially with the California Look — will not be nearly as prevalent this spring, even in California.

West Coast manufacturers are abandoning their elaborately casual image for clothing that is neater, less detailed, more tailored. Rather than being a negative turnabout from leisure suits, however, the phenomenon is in their favor.

"Leisure suits are so much a way of life," says Chip Tolbert, fashion director, Men's Fashion Association of America, "that companies are seeking to make them more versatile."

That versatility is taking the form of subtracting, not adding, so-called leisure details like complicated belting, bric-a-brac and superfluous stitchery. Non-West Coast manufacturers are also in the same mood, simplifying their leisure suit lines. As a result, for perhaps the first time in decades a truly mid-American style is evolving which can travel coast to coast without seeming regionally eccentric at any stop.

The success or failure of this attempt hinges on some leisure suit styles gaining acceptance as office wear. By design, a number of classed up models for spring will look as fashion-right with a shirt and tie as with an open-collared shirt and scarf.

Of course, only the more tailored leisure suits fit this category. They are usually fully-lined, with a longer slimming silhouette to the jacket. Wearing matching trousers and a tie will be essential for business acceptance.

More questionable as components in a weekday wardrobe are coordinated separates — shirt-jackets, shirts and trousers — even though the emphasis here this spring is also on a toned down look.

In most instances the tops are also longer than in recent seasons. Tailoring is in a more classic mood. For example, a new shirt-jacket from Pen West has a stitched-down back belt reminiscent of a Norfolk jacket, a feature more traditionally found in suit jackets. Another tailoring touch is the pleated back. Nonetheless, even when worn with classic straight-legged pants and a neat geometric shirt (color coordinated with the jacket by the manufacturer), the look is probably still too easygoing for business hours. Yet the outfit smacks of no regionalism.

Outfits with straightforward sporty flair are more tidy this spring. Take the tie-dyed fabrics popular for several seasons. They're still around but less brightly blotched. Shirt Designs, a California company, has introduced an unconstructed shirt-style leisure outfit in tie-dyed cotton painwale corduroy. It is subtly, not brashly, washed out. The longer shirt is neatly tapered. The straight, deep yoke also creates pocket flaps in a crisp line. Side vented, the shirt-jacket can be worn alone or with another shirt beneath.

While there can be no mistaking leather outerwear as business attire, leather jackets are similarly being treated with understatement this spring. The lightweight, soft styles disprove the notion that leather is only for fall and winter. Suedes are falling into disfavor this season, with smooth, light toned glace finishes receiving the nod. Surprisingly, leather jackets are a specialty of California, although wearing them is no more western than eastern, especially since the new styles are cleanly handsome, with graceful yoke treatments and subtle detailing, with nothing whatsoever about the cowboy or stuntman about them.

In fact, playing roles or stunts with menswear won't be done this spring at all. Except for novelty clothing — jogging outfits, tennis gear, whimsical weekend nifties — men's wearables are being taken much more seriously. Versatility — whether it's a leisure suit doing double-duty as both office attire and casual wear, or shirt-jacketed outfits worn in or out of slacks, with or without another shirt beneath — is the real key. To be more versatile, men's clothing will become more simple this spring. By trying to find a common ground in their styles, menswear manufacturers are eliminating regional stereotypes in how men dress.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

CALIFORNIA casual look is reinterpreted for double-duty versatility. It even goes to the office. Here Stuart Nelson features dressier detailing to look right with sport shirt and scarf or shirt and tie.

When Glamor Goes to your Head

Mayor gets locksmith to take office

BUNKER, Mo. (AP) — The small Southern Missouri town of Bunker has an officially elected mayor today after more than two years of political chaos.

Wilbur Thornton named Malden's new postmaster

MALDEN — Wilbur Thornton, the previous assistant postmaster, has been appointed postmaster of the Malden post office.

Swearing-in ceremonies were held Jan. 30, with Thornton receiving his oath of office from John D. MacDonald of Poplar Bluff, sectional center postmaster- manager. The brief ceremony was held at the Malden post office.

Thornton began his postal career in 1959 as a substitute mail carrier. He became a regular city mail carrier in 1966. During this time, Thornton expressed a desire to continue in the postal service to Postmaster Harold Hester. Hester provided Thornton with available training and encouragement. When Hester retired, Otto Green became postmaster, and Thornton's training continued under the leadership of Green.

Thornton said that he could not have received the appointment had it not been for the training he received from the two previous postmasters, and he credits his appointment to their leadership abilities. He became assistant postmaster under Green in 1974. The position of postmaster became available after the death of Green in 1975.

Racial discrimination charges in Charleston is dismissed by HEW

CHARLESTON— A complaint charging the Charleston R-1 School District with racial discrimination in its disciplinary, suspension and expulsion policies has been dismissed by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Another complaint, dealing with the distirct's policies on ability grouping, has produced a letter from HEW giving the district 30 days to answer the charges. This matter will be dealt with by the board at its Feb. 12 meeting, according to Supt. Charles Rorex, who said he could not release contents of the letter until after the board meeting.

The closed complaint involved suspensions of black students from the high school, and the expulsion of two others last spring. A group calling itself the black parents committee had filed the complaint with HEW, charging that the expelled students had been denied due process, and expressing concern over the suspension of black students.

The complaint was filed May 10, 1975.

After an investigation by HEW officials Dec. 2-4, the Office of Civil Rights of the HEW regional office in Kansas City has found the complaints groundless.

Taylor D. August, director of the Office for Civil Rights, Region VII, said in a letter to Rorex, dated Jan. 28:

"Our examination of the official district policy on discipline approved by your Board of Directors as well as the district's records on expulsions and suspensions at the senior and junior high schools for 1973-74, 1974-75 and 1975-76 as of Nov. 26, 1975, did not reveal any evidence of discrimination in the discipline policy itself or in its application. In addition to the data provided on expulsions and suspensions, we also examined disciplinary referrals by teachers at the senior and junior high schools for the 1975-76 school year as of Nov. 26, 1975. This analysis of referrals did not reflect any discriminatory treatment of minority students on the part of teachers in the district.

"Accordingly, we have determined that the complaint is without merit and it is the finding of the Office for Civil Rights that, at this time, the Charleston R-1 School District meets the compliance requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 in the administration of disciplinary sanctions. We are, therefore, closing this complaint as of this date."

House approves gas bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a measure that would boost natural gas prices slightly by removing controls from independent producers, but it rejected administration plans to deregulate the big producers.

The House voted Thursday to lift federal price controls from an estimated 3,500 independent producers but to retain price controls on the 25 to 30 largest producers and extend the ceilings to gas transactions within individual states. Those intrastate sales have hitherto been unregulated.

The House bill differs fundamentally from a measure passed by the Senate which would gradually end all price controls on natural gas. The two measures now go to a conference committee where the outlook for a compromise is unclear.

The administration had backed complete decontrol of the industry to allow prices to rise enough to stimulate exploration for new gas.

One congressman who worked for total decontrol later complained that the House bill would actually regulate 75 per cent of the U.S. supply of natural gas, compared to 65 per cent that is now regulated.

The independent producers which would escape regulation are defined as producing less than 100 billion cubic feet a year and account for only about 25 per cent of the natural gas produced in the United States, with the other 75 per cent accounted for by the larger producers.

Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, sponsor of the bill, estimated the legislation would allow prices charged by independent producers to rise from an average of 35 cents per thousand cubic feet to about $1.

But what this price rise would mean to the consumer was not as easily forecast, mainly because of the wide variety of possible combinations of gas derived from both unregulated and regulated producers.

However, the Federal Energy Administration said any increase to the consumer is likely to be minimal. In addition, only about 17 per cent to 25 per cent of the residential consumer's gas bill is for the actual cost of the fuel. The rest is for pieline transportation charges and the local utility's charge for delivering the gas to customers.

Meanwhile, there were these developments:

—Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards said the House bill was "patently unconstitutional." If it becomes law, Louisiana, which leads the nation in gas production, will seek a court ruling that the federal government has no constitutional right to regulate the price of natural gas within state borders, Edwards said.

—The House action was also denounced by Exxon, the largest American petroleum company, as "an extreme example of punitive legislation against major oil companies."

Bid accepted on house move

DEXTER— Dexter Heritage Association, Inc., board members unanimously voted Wednesday night to accept as submitted a bid from John Blackwell of East Prairie to move Dexter's oldest home from its present site and to provide a foundation at its new location.

The $3,100 bid provides that the chimney and rear addition on the original home be removed prior to the house moving.

Blackwell has offered to donate $200 of the moving cost, which, combined with a cancelation of $195 in chimney and rear-addition removal costs, brings the price of his original bid of $3,495 down to $3,100.

Association president C. R. Trotter asked attorney Jim McGhee to draw up a contract with Blackwell on behalf of the association to have the house moved within a 30-day period, weather permitting.

Trotter told board members, "I think it's the cheapest price we can get the job done."

In other business, board members unanimously agreed to accept a draft of association bylaws as drawn up by McGhee.

The bylaws will entitle individual and group contributors to membership in the association.

A third motion unanimously voted by the group authorizes the relocation of the home to a site bounded by Cooper and St. Francis streets.

The motion specifies that the house be placed east of and adjacent to the ash tree towards the center of the lot; roughly 60 feet from the south boundary and 120 feet from the north boundary of the property.

The property is located behind the Dexter fire station and is bounded on the west side by the levee of the city fish pond.

Tentative plans include an area for visitor parking on the west side of the home site, with ample grounds around the home for gardening and landscaping.

Association vice president Marcia Hill reported that Missouri Utilities Co. manager Bob Robins has offered to wire the house for electricity through an underground cable.

McGhee reported that the peperwork involved in seeking tax exempt status for contributions made to the housemoving and restoration project is proceeding slowly. However, he hopes an Internal Revenue Service ruling on the matter will be made within a month.

McGhee also read aloud the rough draft of a lease between the city of Dexter and Dexter Heritage Association, Inc., which he has presented to the City Council. The council has not yet acted on the lease, McGhee said.

In other business, Trotter reported that Dexter National Bank president Jerry Boyd has agreed to execute a bill of ale free of any lien, transferring ownership of the house from Dexter National Bank to Dexter Heritage Association.

Jack MacDonald told the group that he is continuing to look into the availability of federal funds for the project.

Association treasurer David Flohr reported contributions received amount oto $860.

The next board meeting was set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Dexter National Bank community room.
